Town Pound: historic value or pile of rocks?

Pound has been moved and will be rebuilt - but never the same

By JAYNE W. MILLER

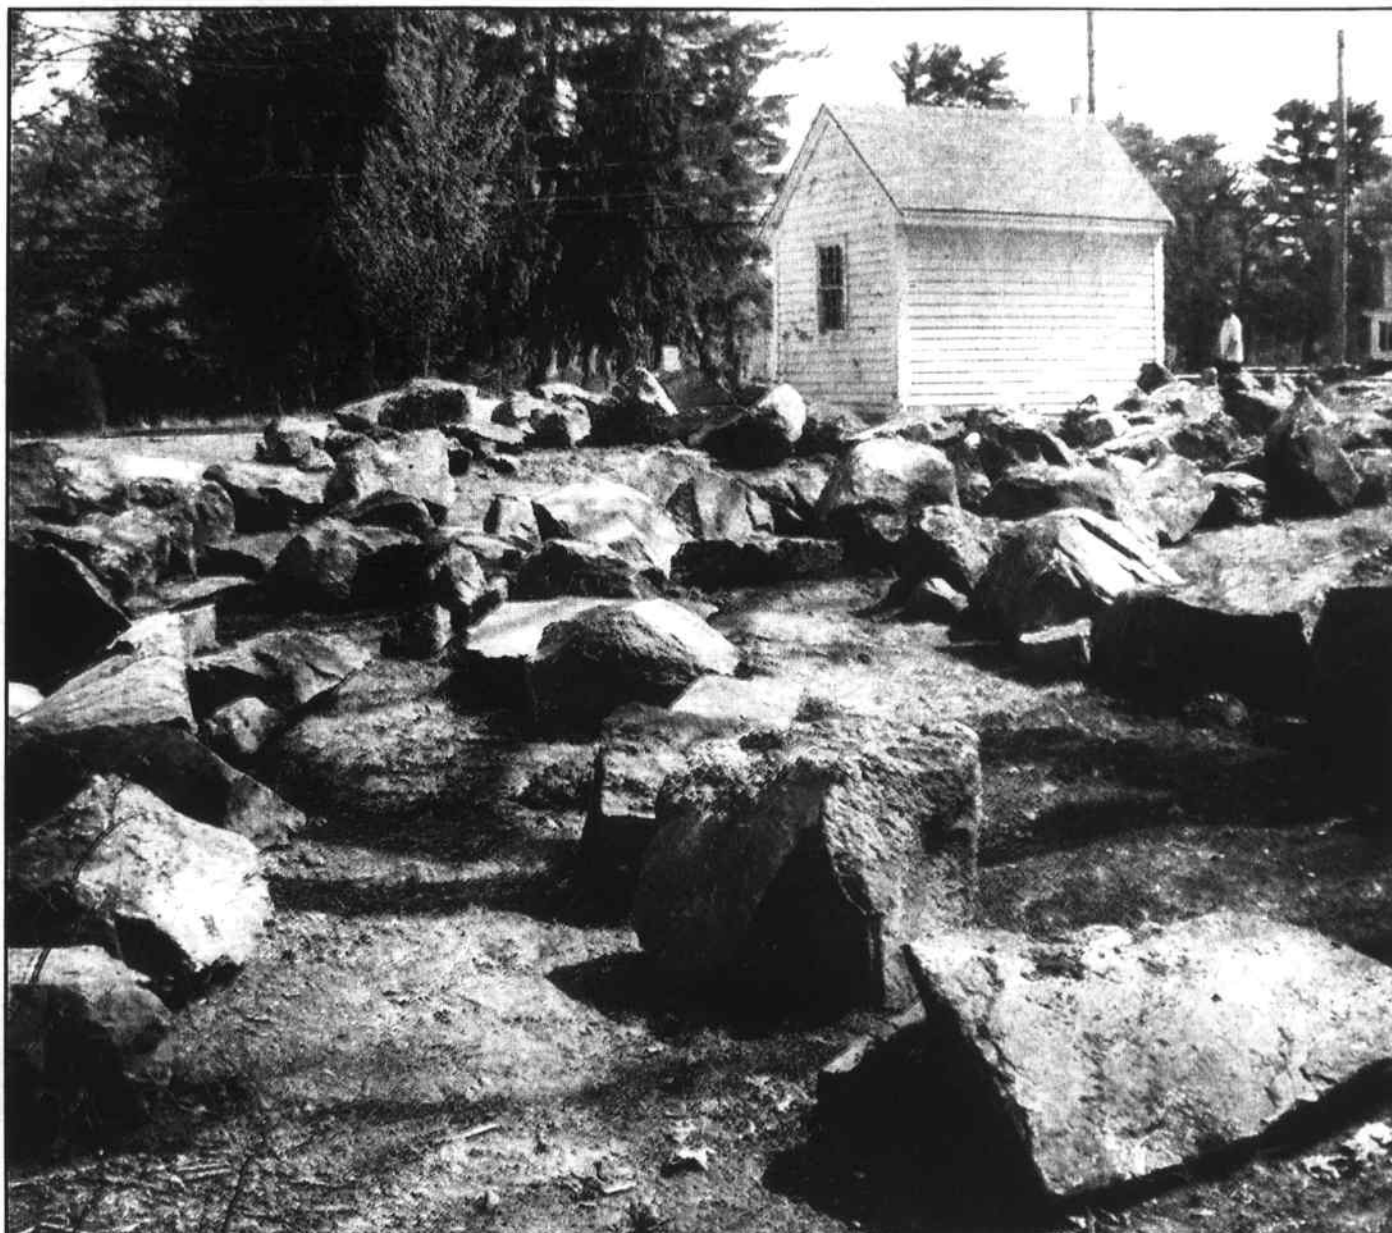

WILMINGTON - When the Taylors of 9 Glen Drive began dismantling a rock wall on their property two weeks ago, they knew it was a piece of Wilmington history.

According to a document released at Monday's Board of Selectmen meeting, the homeowners met with members of the historical commission last fall after they expressed a desire to remove the "pile of rocks" on their property. The letter from Historical Commission Chairman, Carolyn Harris, says the homeowners were informed shortly after purchasing the property about the historic nature of the Town Pound.

According to the letter, portions of which Town Manager Michael Caira read at the Selectmen meeting, the Taylors contacted the Historical Commission with their concerns about the condition of the pound, seeing it as a hazard and potential liability. Harris presented sev-

Town withstands latest cuts to Local Aid

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Despite a drop in local aid reflected in most recent numbers from the House Ways and Means Budget Proposal, Caira is confident that Wilmington should go forward with the budget at this Saturday's Town Meeting.

Caira indicated that any cuts that persist through to the budget process would not require new fees, employee layoffs, or new taxes to sustain the town. Rather, Caira says that the town would have to delay or defer some capital activities or leave a few positions open.

Between the Governor's Budget, which came out a little over two months ago, and

State Police investigate fatal crash

NEWBURY - On Monday, April 27, 2009, at approximately 1:44 a.m., Troopers assigned to the State Police Barracks in Newbury responded to a one-vehicle crash on Route 495 North, north of Route 97 (Exit 50) in Haverhill when she lost control and went off the right side of the roadway that resulted in one fatality. Preliminary investigation by Trooper Kevin Bibeau indicates that 23-year-old Lianne M. Balch of Wilmington was operating a 2002 VW Jetta sedan on Route 495 North, north of Route 97 (Exit 50) in Haverhill when she lost control and went off the right side of the roadway

Low voter turnout at Town Election

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - A second year of uncontested elections brought out a few more voters this year than last year, but at nearly $10,000 for a Saturday election, it may make more sense to move the election to a weekday in the future.

A total of 693 residents, or 4.6 percent of the eligible voters, cast a vote in Saturday's town election, up from just over 600 votes last year. Town Clerk Sharon George attributes the bump in turnout to voters showing support for three new candidates for town offices: Michael Champoux for Selectman and Mario Marchese and A. Quincy Vale for School Committee.

Incumbents Jimmy Stewart retained his role as Town Moderator and Jimmy Gillis is back in the saddle for the Regional Vocational Technical School Committee.

According to George, Precinct 5 had the highest vote count with 153 votes cast, in Champoux's home district. Precinct 4 followed closely with 146 votes, then Precinct 2 with 116 and Precinct 3 with 101. Two precincts did not even break 100 votes over twelve hours that the polls were open. Precinct 6 had 98 votes and Precinct 1 a measly 79 votes.

The town paid $9,500 for the Saturday election. With only 693 votes, that equates to a cost of $13.70 per vote.

George says that overtime costs drive the expense of a Saturday election since all election workers, including the police officers who are required to transport ballot

The Book Store Next Door is bringing in people from miles around

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Its genesis was brought forth by a simple offhand remark made in jest, but in just two years Wilmington's unimposing little used bookstore has had quite an impact. Eager bookworms and collectors come in from all surrounding communities and from miles away to search through the treasures offered by The Book Store Next Door.

The charming little house, which was a private residence until it was purchased by the town several years ago, acts as an idyllic host. The front door, complete with charmingly weathered storm door, opens up every weekend inviting people into a setting that one might expect to find in Stow, Vermont, or in the Berkshires. Guests enter first into a modest parlor, packed wall-to-wall with books of fiction, and are greeted by a friendly volunteer worker. It is an impressive collection, and there still remains two additional rooms to explore, one of which is devoted entirely to children's books. The other is jam-packed full of biographies, how-to, self-help/psychology, and history. And we haven't even touched on the wide variety of books on CD.

The entire operation is run by the Friends of the Wilmington Memorial Library. It is staffed by volunteers, and the inventory is made up entirely by donations and Library discards. And all proceeds go to the Wilmington Memorial Library to fund special programs and initiatives. In its first year of operation, the modest little bookstore provided thousands of dollars to Library programs and services. A feat evermore impressive when considering the prices being charged per book. Most hardcover books are sold for just $2, trade paperbacks are priced at $1, and regular paperbacks are just $.50.

The money has gone toward the funding of the Summer Reading program, Wilmington Reads, and a number of other programs. It has even contributed to paying for the beautiful new sign that stands out in front of the library.

"This money supports programs for the benefit of the community," said Library Director Christina Stewart. "The Book Store Next Door has allowed us to do so much, and to continue with the Library makeover."

Stewart describes the bookstore as a eral options to the homeowners for preservation including "shoring up" the stone wall, placement of an historic style gate where the Pound opens to the sidewalk, cleaning out the interior of trees and brush, and exploring the idea of a tax easement.

Harris wrote in her letter to Caira that the homeowners agreed to contact Harris when they were ready to move forward and before making any changes to the structure. Yet, Harris insists that she was not contacted prior to Taylor taking a bobcat to the stonework.

"We were pretty emphatic about how important it was to the town and we were not notified," said Caira. "We had no warning that those stones were coming down Saturday morning."

Caira said Tuesday that the homeowners are now working with the town and making some effort to preserve the pound, though moving it from its historic site. He added that when the homeowners were asked to stop they were "very cooperative," though not interested in it remaining on the property.

Some of the structure is already destroyed and the stones are no longer in the same formation. Caira said that historical commission

ABOUT CASUALTY LOSSES

Once upon a tax time, it was possible to deduct casualty losses almost completely. No more, and a recent change for this year makes it even less of a deduction possible.

For the past few years, the per-casualty floor—the amount you had to pay yourself before considering a deduction—was $100. After that, the casualty loss, the amount not covered by insurance, was deductible only to the extent that it exceeded 10 percent of adjusted gross income.

For this year, the floor is $500, and again the loss is deductible only to the extent it exceeds 10 percent of AGI—except for those in federal disaster area.

New: nonitemizers in federally declared disaster areas can increase their standard deduction by any casualty losses they incurred in 2008 or 2009. Such losses—not limited by the 10 percent of AGI rule—can be taken against the AMT, as well.

The tax code is full of rules and loopholes. We'll help you through them all at:

officials plan to number the remaining stones as they come off the wall leaving the possibility that a professional could accurately reconstruct the wall. The fieldstones will be organized behind the Scale-Keeper's House at the old cemetery and eventually will be rebuilt beside it.

Newly elected Selectman Mike Champoux asked Caira if by virtue of dismantling the wall, the pound will cease to be what it was. Caira replied that it will have less historic integrity, but will still be the Pound.

"It's as though half a loaf is better than none at this point," said Caira.
The Wilmington Town

Pound is a 15-foot by 18-foot heavy fieldstone enclosure built in 1814 on land given to the town by William Blanchard, and was used to secure unattended livestock in the town center. The Town Pound, though sold back into private ownership in 1911, was cited several times in the National Register of Historic Places as a contributing structure in Wilmington's Centre Village Historic District. Town Pounds were commonly used in New England from the mid 1600s to the late 1800s.

machines, are paid overtime wages.

Most towns in the region have moved their town elections to Tuesdays leaving just Wilmington, Tewksbury, and Burlington with Saturday elections.

"I support changing the day of the election, and that's just my opinion. From my experience, very few towns have their elections any more on Saturday for the sole reason that its cost prohibitive," said

George, who has been a town or city clerk for over ten years. "Many towns have changed to Mondays or Tuesdays because it's less costly. You aren't paying everybody for 14 hours of overtime."

Reading, North Reading, Woburn, Chelmsford, Andover and North Andover all have their elections on Tuesdays where most of the workers are already on the clock for the regular day. George did not give an estimate of how much might be saved by moving the election, which would require approval of Town Meeting.

In the fall the Board of Registrars will meet and make a recommendation on this topic to the Board of Selectmen. Should the Registrars agree to recommend moving to Tuesdays, the board will provide Selectmen with a warrant article to vote upon.

"win, win, win" situation - the Friends have made good revenue-generating use of a vacant, unused town-owned building; the community has a place to recycle unwanted books; a location now exists offering unbeatable value in today's difficult economic climate. There is no downside.

The Friends of the Wilmington Memorial Library is a volunteer non-profit organization made up of residents committed to providing financial support for library services and program over and above the town's budget. The recent makeover of the library's interior, the purchase of museum passes, and the purchase of a 24-hour book drop are just a couple of examples of ways that the Friends have provided to the library.

Prior to 2007, the Friends' most profitable fundraiser was its annual used book sale. Once a year, for three straight days, the upstairs conference room of the Library was transformed into a bookstore. Folding tables were brought in; boxes and boxes of books were lugged up and down the stairs. Hundreds of people would show up of the course of the sale. The sale would generally net an average of $4,000.

As space within the library became more and more in demand, it became increasingly difficult to hold donated books for the book sale. Then the town purchased the modest little house "next door" to the library, and Stewart jumped at the chance to utilize it for additional storage space. But the logistics of transporting thousands of books from the house to the library for the annual book sale were daunting, to say the least.

Friends volunteers were sorting donated books in the little house and one of them jokingly remarked that they should open a bookstore right there. They weren't laughing for long. They could see the upside right away and began to brainstorm. Then they shared their vision with Stewart.

Stewart approached Wilmington Town Manager Michael Caira, who was open to the prospect. The DPW and the Department of Public Buildings provided all the work done in preparation for the opening, and have since installed a parking lot behind the store.

All that was needed was a name. The house's location provided the inspiration. Nestled right next door to the library, legendary Wilmington High School math teacher Frank Kelley referred to it as "the bookstore next door to the library." From then on, it was simply The Book Store Next Door.

Leslie Dietrich, a member of the Friends, took on the volunteer role of bookstore manager and quickly became the life, blood, and heart of the operation. She works a fulltime job in Boston, but still finds time to sort through new donations, schedule volunteers to man the store, and a myriad of other tasks.

"We try very hard to be 'green' in every conceivable way," Dietrich said. "We are especially conscious of the fact that we are in a municipal building. We recycle not only books, but cardboard boxes, miscellaneous paper, and bags - and we conserve energy whenever possible."

Dietrich never imagined how successful the endeavor would become. Thanks to the generosity of the public, there is a constantly updated inventory. Only gently used books in good condition are put on the shelves for sale. Books in poor condition are recycled, so nothing goes to waste.

"I had a dream of creating another Harvard Book Store out here in the suburbs," said Dietrich.

The Book Store Next Door originally opened on Saturdays only. It offered extended hours during the town's week-long Fourth of July celebrations, and now opens on Sundays as well.

"If you haven't had a chance yet to check it out, take the time to discover what a great resource it is for the town," said Stewart.

Last Pound in New England

Dear Editor,
Greetings from the Hysterical commission former member

First it was not a dog pound, it was used for lost cows, sheep, etc. and a fee was paid to have the wandering animal returned.

Second: the current owner knew about the Pound when he bought his property. This is nothing to do with property rights

As the Town paid out of its own funds to replace the rocks that had fallen, offered to move the site but was told no, he likes the history of it and would not let the town move it.

So please folks, don't get on this rights crap. This is only about a family trying to sell a home in a tight market and the price he may be asking might be too high.

I spent years on the committee and when this house was first built the pound was going to be deeded over to the town. Guess what; the builder said one thing and did the other. I have traveled all over the world and have seen buildings that are a thousand years old and still being used. Here in our country we forget where we came from and our history. What happened on Glen Road was the last Pound in New England destroyed. No one ignored this family and would have moved it, as it was all marked; the stones labeled if it came to have it moved, and years were spent working with different families who owned this house to preserve it. These are the facts from one who was on the committee.

James Murray
Former Member
Wilmington

Outraged

Dear Editor,
I would like to voice my anger about the willful destruction of one of our most treasured historic landmarks...the Town Pound.

As a member of this Wilmington Historical Commission I have personally been involved in the many, many discussions regarding the issue that the Taylor's had with the "pile of rocks" (as they referred to it) on their property. The Historic Commission has a ton of documentation including letters and minutes of our meeting where we have discussed and recapped Carolyn Harris' face-to-face discussions with the Taylors. So to suggest that the Historical Commission dropped the ball on this one, quite frankly, could not be further from the TRUTH!

In my opinion, these people moved into our town without any interest in it's history or its heritage, destroyed a landmark that is on the National Register of Historic Places and are now LEAVING. How dare they! How arrogant! What they did was DESPICABLE!

Signed, outraged.
Bonny Smith

Preserve Swain School

Dear Editor,
I am writing this letter on behalf of Preservation Massachusetts, the statewide non-profit organization that actively promotes the preservation of historic buildings and landscapes as a positive force for economic development and the retention of community character. For several years we have supported the position that communities should preserve their historic schools, because these buildings make an invaluable contribution to our architectural heritage. Once they are gone, they can never be replaced, and we strongly encourage the Town of Wilmington to consider the loss of community character that comes with demolition, as well as some of the advantages to a thoughtful and well-designed rehabilitation of the historic Swain School.

The Swain School's 1914 colonial revival architecture and prominent siting on the town's historic common make it an important landmark in a part of Wilmington where little historic fabric remains. The building is also listed on the National Register of Historic Structures as contributing to the Wilmington Center Village Historic District - an area that has seen the loss of many historic properties in the last decades. Currently, the building is in a state of mild disrepair with evidence of a roof leak near the northwest corner and some crumbling brickwork, but notwithstanding these issues - not unusual for a building this age - the building appears to be solid, strong, and a viable candidate for rehabilitation. The Commonwealth has certainly seen the successful rehabilitation of lesser buildings.

In fact, some of the Commonwealth's most forward-looking town halls and public buildings are those that have combined preservation of historic schools with sustainable development, providing a daily example to the community that creative solutions can meet a broad variety of needs, without needlessly filling a landfill with demolition debris and robbing the community of an irreplaceable cultural resource. Examples abound throughout the Commonwealth of affordable, environmentally sustainable school rehabilitations - many of them as town halls or town hall annexes, an ideal use for the site.

We understand that the town of Wilmington is considering a vote to remove asbestos from the building and demolish the structure, leaving a parking lot in its place. While asbestos removal is important and necessary, we believe that demolition would be a tactical mistake for the town - not only a loss of irreplaceable history and character, but also the equivalent of leaving "money on the table." In 2009, there will be unprecedented funding via stimulus for sustainable rehabilitation for state and town owned buildings, as well as proven funding sources for preservation such as the Massachusetts Preservation Project Fund. The building's character and prominent location on the town common make it an ideal demonstration project for a sustainable rehab project.

We urge the Wilmington Town Administration to recognize the potential and meaning in its historic Swain School, because we believe that the Commonwealth's history and character are among its greatest assets. However, its greatest asset is undeniably its people, and it's in their interests most of all that we urge Wilmington to keep its historic school and use it as a springboard for a rich, creative, and sustainable future for the people of Wilmington.

Sincerely,
James W. Igoe
President
Preservation Massachusetts

My bridesmaid, Carol Corcelli, grew up in one of those houses where kids always feel welcome. Dora, her Mom, listened to the dramas consuming our 20-year-old lives, offered advice, and helped us see the bright side of everything. And of course, she fed us! Beautiful Dora is gone now, but I'll always remember the fun we had at her table. Here's what Carol remembers about those days.

"My mother, Dora D'Abbraccio, was always trying the many recipes she collected from co-workers, friends, neighbors, and the hair salon. She believed having a glass of wine while you cooked was very important. Now that I'm older, I believe it must have eased the stress we kids put on her! Fresh Italian bread and cheese were staples in the house because you never knew when company was expected. That's why pickled eggplant, (pickled anything, really), olives, fruit, and biscuits were always plentiful if unexpected friends arrived. Friends brought laughter, which we still need today. This is what I always noticed about my mom."

Polenta with Mushrooms and Peppers

1 tsp salt
1 tsp ground pepper
2 cups corn meal
2 tbl butter
1 med onion, thinly sliced
2 garlic cloves, chopped
3 red or green peppers, sliced

1 1/2 cup tomato sauce
2 tbl chopped parsley
2 tbl chopped basil
2 tbl capers
3 tbl grated cheese
Preheat oven to 350 degrees, and generously butter a 10" square baking dish. Place 8 cups water in a large pot, add salt and pepper, and bring water to boil. Add cornmeal slowly in a thin stream, stirring constantly with wooden spoon to prevent lumping. Reduce heat to low, stirring occasionally, for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, melt butter in frying pan, add onion, and sauté. Add garlic and sauté. Stir in mushrooms and peppers for about 10 minutes.

Heat tomato sauce in a small saucepan, add parsley, basil and capers, and adjust for seasoning.

Pour polenta into your baking dish, and spread the vegetables over it. Pour the tomato sauce over all. Sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake until the top browns, about 20 minutes. Serve hot, 6 servings.

Pickled Eggplant

Cut up 1 eggplant in cubes or thin bit sized slices, sprinkle with salt and put in a colander.

Place a heavy weight (like a pan) on top overnight to drain and remove any bitterness. Next day, squeeze excess liquid out of eggplant and add following ingredients:

Olive oil, vinegar, chopped Italian parsley, sliced celery, oregano, red pepper flakes, chopped garlic

Mix well and place in an airtight container, and allow to marinate in refrigerator for at least 1/2 day. Great with fresh Italian bread, cheese and a glass of wine.

Lemon Dessert

Prepare crust:
Mix 1 cup flour and 1/2 cup margarine. Pat in 9"x13" pan, sprinkle with chopped nuts and press in. Bake at 375 for 15 minutes and allow to cool.

Filling:
Mix - 1 8oz package cream cheese

1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 cup softened Cool Whip (1/2 of container)

Spread on top of cooled crust, and refrigerate for 15 minutes. Beat 2 boxes of instant lemon pudding with 3 cups milk. Pour over cream cheese layer, and refrigerate until firm. Spread top layer with the remaining other half of Cool Whip, and sprinkle with nuts. Keep refrigerated until serving.

Please send your recipe ideas to paula.wilmingtoncooks@hotmail.com.

Historical Society on proposed overlay district

Dear Editor,
Here we are in Tewksbury's 275th year and the Tewksbury Historical Society is following its mission to educate people about Tewksbury's fantastic history. We are encouraging people to delve into Tewksbury's past and learn our past. The last part of our mission statement is to preserve Tewksbury's history.

The Tewksbury Planning Board is recommending an overlay district to our town center so the town center will change. They want a definable town center for Main Street and various roads off the town common. They want to encourage development in this historic part of Tewksbury. This is a section that has a lot of Tewksbury's oldest homes. It has been the seat of government since its incorporation in 1734. The two meetinghouses were built here followed by three town halls. It was where the Militia and Minutemen Companies met early in the morning and marched to Concord to face British Regulars who had also marched to Concord on April 19, 1775. That battle and Tewksbury's resolve to change from British rule to American rule was a defining moment in Tewksbury history but also in Massachusetts and American history. In my humble opinion, it was Tewksbury's "finest hour."

Our preservation mission tells us at first blush to oppose this bylaw based on the preservation of homes reaching back to the 1700's. After careful consideration and conversations with Planning Board members, and review of the revised bylaw we cautiously support the passage of this bylaw. While we did like the design guidelines requiring developer to put a historic and consistent design to buildings and we accept the Planning Board's Site Plan Review as a stronger protector of historic building in this district, we did questioned several uses allowed in the bylaw and shared parking and increased traffic flow in the area. But our mission is not to review a development plan or a planning bylaw that is the Planning Board's domain. What was explained to me by Nancy Reed of the Planning Board was the need for the Survey of Historic Sites and Homes that is being planned by the Historic Commission. We both agreed that the Master Plan did emphasize historic preservation of this area of town. To accomplish this point, she pointed out that another layer of historic planning needed to follow the survey. That planning would be to adopt another overlay district that would preserve these old parts of Tewksbury's Center. This would be to focus on East Street to Chandler Street and on Pleasant Street as Historic District with guidelines fashioned by the people of Tewksbury. This zones could be "very strict" or "not too strict" as decided by the people of Tewksbury. This is the final part of preservation that is needed.

Main Street is not that historic on the northwest side and very young on the southeast side of the Common.

Actually the old Boston Post Road (Main Street) went up East Street and took a right on Lee Street. This crook in "old Main Street" was because of the wetland that covered the present Main Street. The present Main Street was straightened through the wetlands in the early 1900's. All the houses in that "new" section of Main Street are not that old. The East Street to Lee Street to Chandler Street matches up perfectly with the old Boston Post Road on old maps. The buildings, stone walls and history of East Street and Lee Street is the old history in the early colonial era of Tewksbury. The same goes for Pleasant Street.

We agree that the Planning Board is right to put this historic protective overlay district in place but they must make sure to follow it up with a Historic Overlay District once the Survey is completed by the Historic Commission. We need to respect of British beginning and our Revolutionary War spirit.

Rubble, or something more?

Dear Editor,
When is a pile of rubble, just a pile of rubble? My husband and I have done some world travel, from old cities in Europe to Shanghai and Beijing. So to answer my question, when is a pile of rubble just a pile of rubble and doesn't have any historic value?

Stonehenge can be considered just a bunch of stones. But to the English and the rest of the civilized world it is an important part of our religious and historic beings. To the world and to Rome, all the ruins, the Temples and Colosseum and the rest, are rubble of some sort. But they are important to the Romans and the rest of the world. The Great Wall of China stands in part as a pile of rubble. But again, it stands as a strength of a people and a world. All these places may be viewed as special, historic and relevant to the world's history. So why then, is Wilmington's Stone Animal Pound any less important to the people of Wilmington, past, present and future? The Pound was this generation's window on our world's past. Not knowing the Taylors, I have no concept of their personal history. That being said, I am sorry that the Taylors could not or would not put themselves in the position of their neighbors, friends and fellow townspeople. Maybe the pound was important to someone other than themselves.

I find it difficult to believe that having contacted the Town Hall or the Historic Commission, not one person ever contacted them regarding the pound and the problems they felt it generated. It is obvious to me that the Taylors were more motivated by the removal than that of their safety and the safety of their family. The undertaking could have turned dangerous. But I guess getting rid of that pile of rubble was more important.

It is hard for anyone who doesn't have a love of history to understand, but we can't tell where we are going if we don't have any idea of where we came from. And I hope the Taylor's never get lost and have to refer to their past to get where they want to be.

Preserve or destroy

Dear Editor,
Preserve or destroy. That is your choice at this Saturday's Town Meeting. Article 13 is asking for $160,000 to take down the Swain School and fill in the foundation for additional parking. I, for one, feel this is wrong. For many years, Wilmington has talked about making the town common area the center of town government. I feel that instead of knocking down this nationally recognized landmark, we should work together to convert the Swain School into a new, modern, handicapped accessible town hall.

Times are tough, the economy is bad; how do we accomplish this? I suggest that the Board of Selectmen take a proactive stand and modify their warrant article to utilize this $160K as seed money as a catalyst for grant, stimulus, and other funding to redesign the structure. Even in this economy, the state and federal government have millions in preservation grant funds and many private sources as well could be looked at.

Keep in mind that this building is on the National Register of Historic Places in conjunction with the Village District, so that is a plus in seeking funds. Also, because of its prominent location on our town common area, this would be a showcase and testimony to what our community can do to preserve its heritage and create a modern facility for our residents. Wilmington always talks about, "kicking the can down the road," let's get together and create a can, bottle, and paper recycling center there and get our youth involved in a proactive way to assist in fundraising and reduce our trash bill!

I would suggest the BOS form a committee of residents to explore funding avenues and give us our town government where it belongs and seek outside revenue sources. Within our town, we could rent out the West Schoolhouse which would give thousands of dollars each year for the Swain and give life to that building that we, the town, worked together to renovate with state funding. The eventual sale (with historical restrictions) of a renovated Butters Farm could provide potential several hundreds of thousands of dollars. Like with the West Schoolhouse, seek the talent of Shawsheen Tech and other talented groups to assist in the renovation as we did with the former Buzzell School, now proudly our Senior Center

Bottom line, a modern facility with the character and stature of its past as many other communities or a twenty car parking lot with a promise that someday "down the road" our kids will pay for their town hall.

More than likely, this article will be read between 12-3 pm so it is not an all-day event if you don't want it to be. Don't be a bystander who will watch the building come down and say, gee, someone should have done something. Take a stand for preservation and take a stand for your community. I hope to see you on Saturday, May 2nd.

Are you kidding me?? Once again, the stretch of Rte.129 between Michael's and the 99 has been torn to pieces! Can anyone tell me why this project is neverending? We're spanning a small culvert here people, not constructing the Zakim Bridge (which took less time to complete, I believe). We who have had our teeth shaken out of our heads navigating this mess want some answers! Fix it, pave it and lets move on!

Wilmington's newest selectman

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank the many people involved in the Champoux for Selectman campaign. From it's earliest stages when it seemed clear we would have a multi-candidate race, all the way to the end when I became unopposed, many of you were, and stayed, committed to the race and to the ideals that I represent. I appreciate all the many lawn sign volunteers and bumper sticker displayers and the many other ways that you supported me and my candidacy to become Wilmington's next Selectman. I particularly want to express my gratitude to my wife and children who have been my most vocal supporters and for their unyielding patience and generosity in their willingness and understanding in sharing me with the Community. And, I would like to thank the voters of Wilmington for coming out on a beautiful Saturday in an uncontested election. I was encouraged to see many people exercising their civic privilege in spite of this year's unique uncontested races. I wish also to acknowledge and thank my predecessor, Charles Fiore, for his dutiful service to Wilmington as Selectman for the past three years.

I am excited to now be able to take on the job as your Selectman. I hope to be able to be a beneficial part of the team that guides Wilmington into a strong, solid future for all residents. We know there will be tough decisions to be made and that the future is uncertain. However, I am confident that Wilmington has a Board of Selectman that is most capable of working together with each other and with the Town Manager and the Town Administrators to continue to keep Wilmington on strong financial footing while providing the resources that make this the best community in Massachusetts.

I invite and encourage you, the residents of Wilmington, to get engaged in the operation of our town. Come to Town Meeting this Saturday and participate in the governmental process. Visit a Selectmen's meeting or one of the other open board meetings to witness and learn about the issues. Ask questions of me and my fellow Board Members. Wilmington is a great place to live because of the great people who live here. I am honored and thankful that I have this opportunity to serve you.

A Big Thank You to Our Girl Scout Volunteers

April 22nd celebrates National Girl Scout Leader Day, and we at the Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts are so honored to have the support and dedication of our 17,000 volunteers. Each day, week and month throughout the year, we rely on our volunteers to help implement our mission and programming to over 45,000 Girl Scouts.

Our volunteers, as with many organizations, are critical to our success. They provide our girls with the rich experiences they deserve and offer valuable programming in the areas of science, technology, engineering and mathematics, health and fitness, and leadership development. This perpetuates a culture of giving that is reflected in the tremendous community service impact our Girl Scouts make. These volunteers set the example.

The Girl Scout organization epitomizes a positive dependency on volunteers to be successful. Our incredible corps of motivated, inspiring volunteers expands our ability to reach out to girls in every community. Without them, there would be no Girl Scout troops to build these girls into leaders.

Thank you to the following dedicated volunteers in Wilmington that support Girl Scouting:

Denise Abell, Carrie Andersen, Heather Andersen, Gayle Ardito, Monique Barnum, Janet Barone, Paula Barry, Carolyn Blair, Linda Bonney, Lisa Bourrell, Janet Brown, Theresa Brunetto, Jean S. Orwell alive and kicking in Wilmington

Dear Editor,
Firstly, kudos to the Wilmington League of Women Voters for attempting to keep the democratic process alive by holding Candidates Night even though there were no challengers. I must comment on one topic, the possibility of a new High School. Yes, our High School needs serious help. I am hoping I can support a fiscally sound, make sense project. However, where are the School Committee's priorities and what good is spending millions on a building when we apparently cannot afford a decent salary to good people to teach and/or coach our children.

Case and point, the loss of the Basketball Coach, Mr. McCune. After 20 years, 268 wins and eight league titles we could not afford a couple of thousands dollars to keep him? What? I have not always agreed with all his game decisions. But he is the coach and his win record is not his only asset. More importantly, his integrity is apparent. He is a good role model for the kids. A couple of thousand dollars would have kept him and put him close to what other coaches make. Maybe someone can fill me in. I just do not get it. Stop being penny wise and pound foolish. Pay the people what they are worth!

Secondly, two years in a row and no challengers to the School Committee or the "Bored" of Selectmen. I'm sure it will be the same next year. I often notice the similarities between Wilmington's power base and George Orwell's Animal Farm (my favorite read as a teenager). There are even some subtle similarities to Orwell's 1984. I find it interesting, if not comical, one would compare the Selectman's race to a super bowl. I think my metaphor of Animal Farm/1984 is much better. Call it Orwellian or not, it is difficult not to notice that our political atmosphere has similarities to Orwell's Manor Farm or anti-utopia.

I do feel a little guilty about not remaining in the race this year to once again challenge the Napoleon condition (not "THE" Napoleon, the one in Animal Farm) and the propaganda machine. But to be balanced and successful in making change, you need more than just one Snowball. I wish to focus on some other things now. It is time for others to step up to the plate; many of us have done "our time." So all, young and old, if you do not wish Wilmington to turn into another Manor Farm, fight the apathy. Self-centeredness and apathy destroys utopia. Pay attention, see through the propaganda machine, and beware of those who profess themselves the hero. Anyone that read Animal Farm knows what I mean. If not read it, you'll get it.

Lastly, take note of those in opposition to Jim Miceli's article for Town Meeting proposing disclosures of the financial interests. Chapter 268B is what the Legislature is subject to, why not our local government? Opposition to Article 30 will reveal a lot about those opposed and uncover why it is important to maintain the Orwellian condition of hidden agendas behind public consensus.

Vote 'No' on Article 13

Dear Editor,
As a long time Wilmington resident, I agree with Frank West that the Swain School should be renovated for a town purpose rather than be demolished and replaced by another parking lot. This parking lot addition will not add to the attractiveness that our town departments work so hard to beautify our town common area. Taking down this building will not be in the best interest of our community. I would advise all to vote NO on Article 13 at the town meeting and work together to renovate rather than destroy another Wilmington landmark.

Regarding the loss of a Wilmington historical, nationally recognized landmark - the Town Pound, 1814

Dear Editor,

On Patriot's Day weekend, when many of us pay homage to our forefathers and our early history, Wilmington's History was being bulldozed. Our Town Pound, which was built when James Madison was President of the United States, was willfully destroyed by Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Taylor, the current owners of the land on which it had stood for a hundred and ninety five years. Our Town Pound was a silent witness to the growth of our community from a rural farming settlement where stray animals were rounded up and kept in the Town Pound until their owners could claim them to the busy suburban town it is today.

On behalf of the Historical Commission, I wish to set the record straight regarding our continuous efforts to save this landmark. In 1989 when it was clear that a new house was going to be built adjacent to the Town Pound, a report was prepared by Northfield Preservation Associates for the Wilmington Historical Commission, which indicated that "the Town of Wilmington is fortunate in retaining its pound, an integral part of the Center Village District. The pound...is a significant element of the potential historic district, and should be preserved...." In 1990, the Massachusetts Historical Commission wrote that the Pound was eligible for the National Register of Historic Places as part of the potential historic district, and recommended that the new owner of the property be made aware of the historical importance of the structure. The Massachusetts Historical Commission further stated in the same letter that, "the Wilmington Town Pound was established adjacent to the historic common in the early 19th century. These properties are important elements in the town center since they retain physical integrity and, therefore, a strong sense of this early period within the community. To lose this resource would compromise the overall character of the center. Therefore, we support the preservation so that this historic center may remain intact." In 1992, The Wilmington Centre Village Historic District was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. The Town Pound was cited several times in the National Register nomination form as a major contributing structure in the historic district.

Since the Massachusetts Historical Commission made their recommendations in the 1990 letter to the Town of Wilmington, the Wilmington historical Commission has always notified the new owners of the property, on which the Town Pound was located, that they are custodians of an important historic landmark to the Town of Wilmington. The Commission provided each of the new owners with a packet of information that described the historical significance of the Town pound and the historic district. In addition, The Wilmington Historical Commission has always offered to work with the owners of the Town Pound site on any preservation issue. Beginning in 2006, the Wilmington Historical Commission reached out to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Taylor not only providing them with information, but inviting them to attend commission meetings and work with the commission on the preservation of this historic landmark. In a letter dated January 16, 2008, the commission stated, "The Wilmington Historical Commission is anxious to work with you in any way possible to preserve this landmark for future generations. We believe the Historical Commission can be of service to you with several options which can be available to you concerning the future of this historic landmark." In June of 2008, I personally met with the Taylors to review potential offers after they contacted the commission with plans to destroy the Pound and sell the rocks. The commission offered the following: clean out the Pound, place a historic gate on the opening, sure-up loose rocks, landscaping, and a potential tax abatement. All of these options needed to go through the Town Manager who was willing to meet with Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Taylor to potentially work out a solution to keep our Pound where it has been for close to two hundred years. Perhaps Mr. Taylor has forgotten our agreement. When I left his home after a lengthy meeting, Mr. Taylor stated that "he and his wife would discuss what demands that they would have and call me to set up a meeting with the Town Manager." That call never, never came. Mr. Taylor had been given my cell phone, home phone, and the Wilmington Historical Commission phone numbers. There is little doubt that he could have contacted us. If this sounds like a "he said, she said," the Wilmington Historical Commission keeps copies of all correspondence, historical information sent by the commission, and detailed minutes of our commission meetings. There had been no indication from the Taylors that their action of Patriot's Day weekend was planned. They simply destroyed a Wilmington Historic Landmark. I can only assume that since their house is for sale that they wanted it removed for potential financial reasons and cared little for our history. For those Wilmington residents who love this town and its history, this has been a major loss. The Taylors moved to Wilmington, destroyed our history, and are moving elsewhere. It is simply inconceivable that this has happened, but it was on private property. Others worked with the commission, the Taylors chose not to do so.

What is left of the Town Pound will be moved to a new location in the historic district and at some time in the future, when the commission raises the necessary funds, it will be reconstructed. The Wilmington Historical Commission wishes to acknowledge and thank the Town Manager, Terry McDermott, and the Public Works Department for their efforts in preserving what is left of our Town Pound.

In addition, I wish to say that the recent article in the Wilmington Town Crier (April 22, 2009 edition) was a disappointment to the Wilmington Historical Commission as it was not a clear representation of the efforts of the members of the commission to prevent the destruction of our Town Pound. I spent considerable time discussing our position and efforts with the reporter - outlining what the Commission has done, and was prepared to do, to work with the Taylors to save this landmark for future generations. If the work of the commission was in question, perhaps a little more research to verify what we did or did not do should have been in order.

Carolyn Harris
Wilmington Historical Commission

(editor's note: the Town Crier appreciates this letter from Ms. Harris, but it stands behind last week's story, and behind its author Larz F. Neilson. It is the editorial staff's belief that Mr. Neilson reported objectively within the space allocated. As a single excerpt from the article, Ms. Harris is quoted in that story as saying, "I spent hours with these people. We offered to move the structure. We were even looking at sites. We were willing to do whatever it took. The last thing I said to them was, please get back to me. I never got a call. I don't believe there was a demolition permit issued."

That quote appears to succinctly correspond with the sentiments in Ms. Harris's letter.)

MYCHIP coming to Wilmington

WILMINGTON - MYCHIP—The Masonic Youth Child Identification Program—is coming to Wilmington, on May 9, 2009.

Friendship Lodge in Wilmington, and Massachusetts Freemasons, invite children, age 18 and younger, to participate in a comprehensive Child Identification Program at the Wilmington Public Safety Building, on Church Street, in Wilmington on Saturday Morning May 9, 2009 from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.

Each child will have a brief videotape interview, will be fingerprinted by police personnel, and will have a Tooth print* impression and cheek swab made by professional dental personnel. All materials are given to the parents for safekeeping. No copies are kept on file and the program is free to all.

Ethan Patrick Fox Hickey

Rose above all obstacles; just to be a kid

WOBURN - Ethan Patrick Fox Hickey, age 10, of Woburn, and formerly of Malden, passed away on Monday, April 20, 2009, at home surrounded by his family. On September 2, 1998 was the day we became blessed with the birth of Ethan, he was the cherished son of Barbara (Lore) Hickey and Mark Hickey. A tiny little miracle, born premature, yet strong and full of fight. From the beginning of his life he was faced with health problems.

However, he thrived as a child, enjoying Preschool at Rockland Montessori School in Malden. Ethan then went on to Kindergarten at the Ferryway School in Malden. It was then Ethan was diagnosed with brain cancer. Though the odds of survival were against him, and he had many bumps along the way through treatment he soared through to recovery and remission, playing baseball for Malden Little League, attending school, and just wanting to be a normal child.

In April of 2007 Ethan became ill and was diagnosed with Lymphoma. Shortly after this on Ethan's birthday, September 2, 2007 we moved to Woburn. Ethan began school, at the Altavesta Elementary School and on a regular basis attended the Boys and Girls Club of Woburn, where Ethan and his four brothers Cory, Shane, Nick and Markie were embraced and supported. Ethan played baseball for Woburn Little League. No matter where Ethan went he always touched the lives of those he met along the way.

Ethan received all his treatment at the Mass General Pediatric HEME oncology Clinic with the support and love of all the staff. In October of 2008 Ethan's Lymphoma relapsed with the only hope for a cure with a bone marrow transplant. With the planning of this process and moving as quickly as we could do this, Ethan developed a brain tumor in January of 2009. Further testing revealed that he had yet a third cancer, Adenocarcinoma.

We were faced with the knowledge that there were no options for further treatment. Ethan's last wish was to go to Fenway Park and see a Red Sox game. Thanks to our wonderful friends at Mass General and Walsh Construction Company they made this wish come true, on April 8, 2009, we enjoyed our last family outing and a beautiful one at that. What can a Mother say, when she loses her son? What words, what thoughts, what memories are most important at a time like this? How does a Mother sum up her son's short life? When I look at Ethan, when I think of Ethan I realize what a special gift he was from Heaven.

The life lessons he taught all of us around him, the courage he displayed and his strength to rise above the obstacles in his life. He did all this with style, grace and dignity. Even in Ethan's last days he had his amazing smile, his manners and the ability to make us laugh. Ethan will be forever in all our hearts and will be remembered for the love and passion he had for life and wanting to just be a kid, despite it all.

His smile brightened the day and lifted our hearts. We are so proud of him and are blessed to be touched by this little angel. I am so proud to be Ethan's mom, it is an honor and he is my hero.

Ethan is survived by his beloved parents Barbara (Lore) Hickey of Woburn and Mark Hickey of Mansfield, he was the step-son of Shawn Daly and Theresa Hickey, loving brother of Cory, Shane, Nickolas, Markie, J. C., Matthew, Eric, and the late Devin, dear grandson of Barbara & Leo Lore of Canton, Robert & the late Catherine "Kay" Hickey of Charlestown, George & Mary Iannuzzo of Tewksbury, and Gary & Wendy Hennessey, special godson of Lisa Marie (Lore) Lambert & Robert Hickey, Ethan is also survived by many aunts, uncles, cousins, good friends, & his loving and supportive community of Woburn. Family & Friends will gathered at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington on Saturday, April 25th at 8:45 a.m. followed by a Funeral Mass in St. Anthony's Church, 80 Elm St. (Rte. 38) Woburn. Interment took place in Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn.

Memorial donations in Ethan's name may be made to Woburn Boys & Girls Club/Mass. General Pediatric Hematology & Oncology Clinic, c/o Ethan Hickey Fund, Everett Co-Operative Bank, 417 Broadway, Everett, MA 02149.

The Wilmington Fire Fighters Need Your Support To Defeat Article 29 At Town Meeting May 2nd

Civil Service has its roots as far back as 1865. Its purpose was, and still is, to prevent undue, unnecessary and potentially corrupt interference in the critical and sensitive areas of government. We have long recognized that there must be a separation of powers. It is found in our State and Federal Constitutions. The separation of these various entities is fundamental to their individual success. Article 29, if allowed, would have the effect of allowing ANYONE to be appointed to the position of Fire Chief. The politicians would then have an individual who they could control and one who would then be held captive to his or her financial security rather than the needs of the community and the safety of the individual department.

Article 29 represents a quality of life debate. It pits special interests above the needs of the community to provide the highest level of professional services consistent with the ability to afford these services. The essence of the success is in the balancing of these needs, not the suppression of the freedom to advocate for their position for fear of reprisals or even termination of employment. Civil Service provides the checks and balances necessary to insure against abuse of power.

Article 29 deserves to be defeated. The town has consistently recognized the professional, and oftentimes, heroic service of its firefighters. This service has its basis in the leadership of the members chosen by the Civil Service Examination process, the same leadership that Article 29 wishes to discard in favor of a political appointee. Article 29 has little to do with improving government and everything to do with political power.

McMillan is one of April's Seniors of the Month

BILLERICA - Calvin McMillan of Tewksbury was recognized at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School as one of April's Seniors of the Month, but he could just as easily be considered as a candidate for the school's Athlete of the Year awards as well.

McMillan is a three-sport standout for the Rams and is using his athletic and academic experiences at Shawsheen Tech to mold his future.

McMillan, who carries a 3.69 grade-point average as a student in the metal fabrication and welding shop, plays soccer in the fall, wrestles in the winter and competes in track and field in the spring. McMillan was a key member of the wrestling team that ended up capturing both a state vocational championship and a Commonwealth Athletic Conference title. Individually, McMillan won the vocational title at 160 pounds and also reached the Div. 1 state finals at his weight class.

All of McMillan's time around sports has motivated him to look toward a career in athletics. He plans to attend college in the fall and, along with playing soccer, hopes to pursue a career in physical therapy.

McMillan will graduate with plenty of career choices as he is one of the school's top metal fabrication and welding students. An honor-roll student, McMillan won a gold medal at the Skills USA state competition last year and advanced to the national finals, where he finished ninth. This year, he earned a silver medal at the district competition and earned another trip to the state finals.

High School students invited to cheer on local bands to support families in need

Burbank YMCA hosts Battle of the Bands

Friday, May 1st

READING - On Friday, May 1, the Burbank YMCA invites high school students in Reading and the surrounding communities to participate in the Battle of the Bands. The Battle of the Bands will include a variety of music played by local bands with members of the Dropkick Murphys as special guest judges. Doors open at 7:00 p.m. and the cost is $8 per person to cheer on your favorite band.

All proceeds from the event will benefit the Reach Out campaign which will fund scholarships that allow local children and families who otherwise may not be able to, to benefit from YMCA programs such as child care, day camp and programs for at-risk youth.

"In this down turning economy it is important that we reach out to all age groups and give everyone an opportunity to make a difference," said Diana

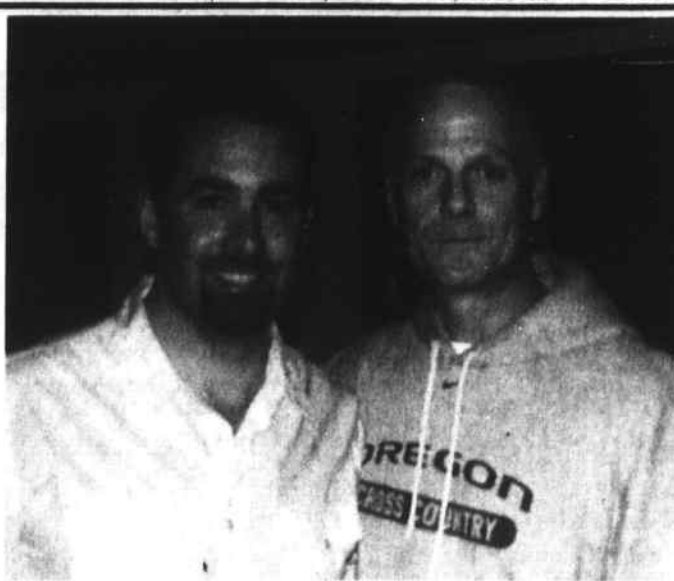

Ganz, Sr. Member Experience Director at the Burbank YMCA. "The Battle of the Bands will be a fun night for teens to showcase their talents and support a worthy cause."

Bands that are interested in participating in the event may contact Diana Ganz at dganz@ymcaboston.org. Entry fee is $25 per band and a cash prize will be awarded to the winning band.

Last year the Burbank YMCA Reach Out campaign raised over $80,000, which allowed the YMCA to provide scholarships to kids and families to participate in programs including summer camp, childcare and teen leadership programs. For more information about the Reach Campaign or the great programs offered at the Burbank YMCA visit www.ymcaboston.org/burbank.

Former Red Sox Lou Merloni Named Honorary Chairperson for The Angel Fund

WAKEFIELD - Former Red Sox infielder and media personality Lou Merloni has joined The Angel Fund as Honorary Chairperson. The Framingham, Massachusetts native is associated with Comcast SportsNet as an analyst and reporter, and is a regular contributor on Sports Radio WEEI.

Merloni, who joined the organization earlier this month, is no stranger to The Angel Fund and its mission to find a cure, through research, for ALS (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis), a disease better known as Lou Gehrig's Disease. His grandmother, Katherine Merloni, succumbed to the disease in October 1980.

As a member of the Red Sox, Merloni was among the players who joined relief pitcher Mike Timlin at the Cecil B. Day Laboratory for Neuromuscular Research during a Red Sox Caravan to learn more about the research conducted by world-renowned research and physician Dr. Robert H. Brown, Jr. The Angel Fund is an independent, nonprofit 501 (c) (3) organization, dedicated to supporting ALS investigation at the Day Laboratory at the UMASS Medical Center in Worcester.

"We are pleased and honored that Lou Merloni has joined The Angel Fund family as Honorary Chairperson," Rich Kennedy, President of The Angel Fund said. "Like many of the supporters and friends of The Angel Fund, Lou has been personally affected by this disease. As such, he shares our commitment to finding a cure for ALS."

Merloni's nine-year career with Major League Baseball included a six-year stint with the Red Sox from 1998 to 2003. He was drafted by the Red Sox in 10th round of the 1993 amateur draft out of Providence College. In addition to the Red Sox, Merloni spent three years with the Cleveland Indians, San Diego Padres and Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim. He retired from baseball in 2007.

Before joining Comcast SportsNet this year, he worked as a baseball analyst on NESN.

Sabounjian to receive Eagle Scout Award

WILMINGTON - Martin Sabounjian, of Wilmington, will receive his Eagle Scout Award, the highest award given by the Boy Scouts of America, on Saturday, May 2, 2009 at 7:00 p.m. at the Wilmington United Methodist Church. The Church is located at 87 Church Street (Route 62) in Wilmington.

Marty joined Cub Scouts in September 1999 and, after receiving his Arrow of Light Award, crossed over from Pack 361 to Boy Scout Troop 56 on January 28, 2002. The Troop has since grown to approximately 60 boys and Marty is the 51st Eagle Scout in its 77-year history.

Since becoming a Boy Scout, Marty has completed all six rank advancements and earned 21 merit badges, including the 12 required of all Eagle Scouts. He was also selected to attend both Brownsea and National Youth Leadership Training camps.

Currently Marty has the privilege of serving as Senior Patrol Leader of the Troop and has, over the past seven years, served at different times as Assistant Senior Patrol Leader, Patrol Leader, Historian and Chaplain Aide.

As a Boy Scout, Marty has spent 57 days camping and over 70 hours performing Troop service projects.

Marty performed his Eagle Project last August in conjunction with the "Wilmington Walks Initiative" conducted by the Healthy Wilmington Coalition. Marty planned, raised funds, solicited food and material donations, and managed a team of scouts and adult leaders to improve the Wilmington Town Park Trail. This included clearing vegetation, laying woodchips, trash clean up, trail marking, GPS mapping, and construction of a kiosk for displaying trail maps and information about the historic Middlesex Canal located along the trail. On Labor Day 2008, the Coalition held a fun family "kick off" event at the Town Park that showcased Marty's Eagle Project and drew over 100 people.

Marty is currently a Senior at Lexington Christian Academy and will be attending Roger Williams University this fall majoring in Criminal Justice with a minor in Music. At LCA he has remained very active with the Choral, Chamber Singers, Peer Issues Group, Worship Band and Lacrosse. Marty is also involved with his youth group at the Armenian Memorial Church in Watertown, MA.

Winchester Hospital recognizes

National Stroke Awareness Month in May

Lifesaving advice for stroke: call 911

WINCHESTER - If you were warned that a stroke was in your future, you'd act to prevent it, right? Yet many people ignore a major red flag: the ministroke.

According to a recent study in the journal Stroke, only one out of 10 people with symptoms of a ministroke, also called a transient ischemic attack (TIA), actually sought appropriate emergency treatment at a hospital.

Winchester Hospital was one of the first hospitals in the state to be designated by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to provide Primary Stroke Services. The Primary Stroke Service regulations were developed to provide acute stroke patients with a greater chance of successful treatment. Through a combination of community education, medical staff training, implementation of hospital protocols geared toward quick stroke diagnosis and treatment, and results analysis, the program is intended to improve treatment of stroke patients before significant irreversible damage occurs.

Stroke, which occurs when blood flow to the brain is interrupted, is the nation's third leading cause of death and the leading cause of severe, long-term disability. According to the American Stroke Association, about 795,000 Americans suffer a new or recurrent stroke each year, killing more than 143,000 people.

About one-third of people who have a TIA will have a stroke in the future, according to the American Heart Association. But that doesn't mean it's inevitable. Knowing the warning signs of a TIA—and seeking immediate medical attention—can help keep your brain safe.

Watch for Stroke Signals
TIAs occur when blood flow to an area of the brain is temporarily blocked, often due to a blood clot. They are known as ministrokes because they cause the same symptoms as a stroke, but last only a few minutes.

For both TIA and stroke, symptoms come on suddenly and include the following:

- Numbness or weakness of the face, arm, or leg, especially on one side of the body
- Confusion or dizziness
- Trouble speaking or understanding
- Trouble seeing in one or both eyes
- Difficulty walking
- Loss of balance or coordination
- Severe headache with no known cause

Heed the Warning

Health experts say you should assume that all stroke-like symptoms signal an emergency. So if you experience even one of the symptoms listed above, call 911 for an ambulance. Remember that ministrokes tend to be brief, but you still need emergency care even if your symptoms disappear quickly.

If it turns out you've had a TIA, your doctor can tell you how to lower your risk for a full-blown stroke—before it has a chance to strike.

Winchester Hospital invites residents to participate in Winchester Medication Take Back Program

WINCHESTER — Medicines save lives. Those which are expired or unwanted, however, should be handled in a safe manner. Drugs that accumulate in our medicine cabinets can contribute to accidental poisonings and illegitimate access that can lead to abuse. Much of the unwanted medicine that is flushed down toilets or thrown in the trash ends up in surface or ground waters, potentially impacting wildlife and aquatic organisms.

Through a collaboration with Winchester's Board of Health, Substance Abuse Coalition, Police Department and Department of Public Works, Winchester Hospital invites residents to participate in the town's second annual Medication Take Back Program. The event, which is part of the town's Hazardous Waste Day, is being held on Saturday, May 9, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the Sons of Italy parking lot next to the transfer station at 117 Swanton St. in Winchester.

Winchester Hospital pharmacists are volunteering their time in accepting unwanted and expired medication for free and safe disposal. Accepted medications include all prescription drugs; over-the-counter medicine; herbal products; vitamin and mineral supplements; and throat lozenges. Items not being accepted include cosmetics; antiperspirants; toothpaste and mouthwash; antiseptic and medicated skin care products; hard surface and toilet disinfectant cleaners; contact lens disinfectants; and sun-burn protection products.

Residents are advised to cross out their name and address with a permanent marker to protect their privacy, though the name of the medication should remain visible on the label. Certain medications are disposed of differently according to state and federal regulation.

Those who are unable to participate may drop off medications at the Winchester Substance Abuse Coalition (WSAC) Medication Take Back kiosk located in the lobby of the Winchester Police Department.

For more information about the Winchester Medication Take Back Program, call (781) 721-7121 or e-mail esilva@winchester.us. For more information about Winchester Hospital, visit www.winchesterhospital.org.

Trivia night is approaching

Do you feel lucky? Well, do ya?

WILMINGTON - Tickets are going fast for the first annual Wilmington Rotary Club Trivia Night on June 12. Do you have what it takes to compete? Here's an example of the type of question that might be asked in the subject of History: What U.S. president first gave the White House its current name? For extra points, what year was that name given? - A) 1775, B) 1860, C) 1833, D) 1901. For extra points, which one of the following was the White House never known as? A) Executive Mansion, B) President's House, C) Executive Suite, D) President's Palace.

The answers appear at the end of this article.

The Rotary Club is looking for a total of 55 four-person teams. More than 40 teams are already committed, so don't delay. Put your brain trust together and join the fun.

Whether your team consists of family members, neighbors, co-workers; there is room for you. In fact, the Rotary is looking forward to friendly competition between sub-groups. Banks vs. banks, restaurants vs. restaurants, families vs. families, law office vs. law office, service groups vs. service groups, and real estate agents vs. real estate agents, the potential is unlimited. So far, committed entries include teams from Rocco's Restaurant, Focaccia's Restaurant, Eastern Bank, Danversbank, Reading Cooperative Bank, Law Office of Robert Peterson, Law Office of Michael Newhouse, Burns Family, Pinewood Road Bombers, Northeast Realty Partners, Rotary Club, Wilmington Community Fund and the Fourth of July Committee Firecrackers.

Teams added since the initial notice in this paper include Wilmington Memorial Library, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Interact Club, the Wilmington Educational Foundation, and the Wilmington Senior Center.

Additional business teams include Joyce Brisbois, CPA, Dunkin' Donuts (Marv Weiner), Whistle Stop Market, Marotta Insurance, Proforma, Proto-Pac Engineering, and Michaels Place.

Additional neighborhood and family teams include the Flynn Family, Pizzotti Family, the Spry Family, the Giamberardino Family, and the Maninini Family, Dan Kane and Ryan Kane.

Teams will face three rounds off twenty-five questions. Topics will include sports, entertainment (music and movies), history, and Wilmington-specific questions as well. Teams will produce written answers on the provided score sheets. Scores will be tallied and the next round will begin. Running scores will be posted at the end of each round for teams to track their standings.

The scoring system will reveal an overall winning team at the end of the evening, but will also identify the top scoring team for each sub-category. Prizes will be awarded for overall performance, as well as for the various categories.

Best of all, the proceeds raised from the event will benefit Rotary Club scholarships for Wilmington students attending any high school and preparing for college.

The Rotary Club is the largest donor of scholarships in the Town of Wilmington contributing over $30,000 a year to graduating seniors. Over the years, the club has raised and donated hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The fun-filled evening, which begins promptly at 7:00 p.m., will be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall and will feature raffles and a cash bar. Teams are encouraged to bring their own munchies.

Call Harry Cunningham at 978-657-7633 to purchase tickets.

WCTV will be recording the event to be broadcast at a later time.

ANSWER: Although construction began in 1792, it was not until 1901 that President Theodore Roosevelt officially gave the White House its current name. At various times in history, the White House has been known as the "President's House," the "President's Palace," and the "Executive Mansion."

No fees, layoffs or new taxes

the House Ways and Means (HWM) proposal released last week, Chapter 70 monies for education were level funded from FY09. However, no final numbers have emerged from the lengthy budget process on Beacon Hill.

There is some concern, particularly in neighboring towns that local aid numbers will continue to drop just as the 9C cuts dropped more than once this year. The House will continue to debate the budget, possibly coming to a resolution before midnight on Friday. Then, the budget will go to the Senate, where after much discussion and debate the budget will likely end-up further delayed in a conference committee.

Looking at the General Government portion of the Cherry Sheet for FY10 the Governor has consolidated several budget items, such as Lottery Aid, General Fund Subsidy to Lottery, and Additional Assistance into one new item called Unrestricted General Government Aid. That figure dropped from $3.094 million to $2.211 million in the Governor's Budget, down to $2.094 million in the HWM's proposal.

Also changed in the HWM's proposal was the elimination of new revenues towns could levy in the form of Meals and Room Taxes increases. Caira reminded Selectmen and residents that his office never included any revenues from the meals or room taxes as part of its budget request.

The House proposed budget eliminated the Police Career Incentive line item, also known as the Quinn Bill, dropping from the FY09 estimated budget at $183,516 to $136,294 in the Governor's budget. An effort is underway to restore the Quinn Bill, meaning the town could pick up that $180,000.

Thus, even with cuts to local aid, Caira says that the town is "really dealing with a problem on major cuts just over $100 thousand." By backing out the numbers the Governor included in his budget that were eliminated in the HWM proposal and subtracting the difference, one arrives at just under $134,000 for a budget gap.

"We would have to delay or defer any capital activities or leave a few positions open," said Caira, as a way of dealing with an additional cut to this budget. "There will be no need for an increase in taxes, no fees, and no layoffs."

Wilmington 8th grade students, Kevin Dunfee, Rebecca McLaren, Alexandra Derian, Lauren McKenna and Michelle Woods organized a blanket and towel drive at the Wilmington Middle School. The students delivered over 200 blankets, towels, sheets and comforters to the Methuen Chapter of the MSPCA to help comfort the animals while they wait for adoption. WHS Model U.N. takes on Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Wilmington High School's Model United Nations Team recently attended international conference on March 26-29 at the George Washington University in Washington, D.C. The main objective was to simulate the work of the real United Nations, by proposing and negotiating possible solutions to the many challenges facing our world. Students discussed a wide array of humanitarian and political issues including refugee camps in Uganda, climate change, and the current global economic crisis.

This conference did not only stress diplomacy inside committee sessions, but also provided students with an opportunity to enjoy Washington D.C. All Wilmington High School delegates represented the school with class and pride. Wilmington High School's performance was highlighted by Megan Torres (sophomore) and Kelsey Sullivan (junior) who worked together in a double delegation and won an Honorable Mention award from the Novice Committee. Students had the opportunity to interact with students from fifty four schools and nine countries. These four days transformed all of the Model UN members into better leaders and more effective communicators.

New Adult and Family Hike Series at Mass Audubon's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary

IPSWICH - Mass Audubon's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is offering a new hike series for adults and families this spring and summer. The series of four hikes focuses on getting families and adults outdoors, learning about animals and their habitats, hiking etiquette, equipment, and safety. On each hike, we will explore and learn about different ecosystems as we increase the difficulty and length of each trip, culminating with a moderate peak hike in July. Two local hikes in May will prepare us for more challenging hikes at Pawtuckaway

State Park in June and Mount Chocoma in July (both in New Hampshire).

Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary: Saturday, May 2, 9:00 a.m.-noon

Willowdale State Forest, Ipswich: Saturday, May 16, 9:00 a.m.-noon

Fee for each of these two hikes: $9/adults, $7/children (discount for Mass Audubon members). Complete program descriptions can be viewed on the web at www.massaudubon.org/ipswich river or call 978-887-9264 for a free program catalog.

64 lawmakers sign onto amendment to restore $18 million to home care

A number of state representatives have signed onto a budget amendment that would restore $18 million that has been cut from the home care budget for fiscal year 2010. The amendment, filed by House Elder Affairs Chairwoman Alice Wolf of Cambridge, would prevent 4,400 elders a month from losing their home care services as of July 1st. As of noon on April 23rd, 64 State Representatives signed onto the amendment, which home care advocates have made their top priority for next week's budget debate. According to Rosanne DiStefano, Executive Director of Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley there is the potential of 850 elders in the Merrimack Valley losing their home care services if funding is not restored.

"If this amendment fails, we will be cutting thousands of seniors off home care," said Al Norman, Executive Director of Mass Home Care. "This will be the largest cut in services since home care was created in 1973. Norman said that average monthly caseloads will fall from 32,124 to 27,750 if $17.9 million is not restored. The lost funds were part of the House Ways and Means budget, which will be debated in the week of April 27th.

Norman said that the state is receiving more than $1.4 billion in new federal Medicaid funding for 2010—yet home care will be closed to new applicants. Nursing homes are slated to receive $45 million in rate hikes, while home care agencies will lose 17% of their funding. "In a state that calls itself a 'community first' state, none of this makes sense," Norman stated. "Seniors overwhelmingly want to be cared for at home, yet the budget continues to favor institutions, while rationing home care."

"We need to listen to what our families are telling us," Norman added, "and give them care where they want it—at home. We fought a civil rights battle for years in this state to protect the consumer's right to be cared for in the 'least restrictive setting' possible—but this budget does not reflect that intent."

Norman said that 565 seniors were waiting to get into home care as of March 31, 2009, and more than 200 additional consumers waiting to get into enhanced home care programs. The cutbacks this year were caused by so-called '9c' reductions in funding last October. "This has already been a tough year for seniors struggling to live at home," Norman said, "but next year will push us down to historic lows." According to Mass Home Care, the case load drop will lower the program to levels not seen since 1980, when an average of 39,000 elders were receiving home care each month.

Norman said that agencies working with seniors understand the revenue crunch, and therefore are supportive of efforts to raise revenues, or tap into the Stabilization fund. "We have told lawmakers we will applaud their efforts to generate revenues," Norman concluded. "The income tax cuts of the 1990s have left us in this deplorable situation. The Chairman of House Ways & Means has called these cuts 'distasteful' and he is right. It is painful to raise revenues—but it is even more painful to tell a family that their mother cannot get the help she needs to remain living at home. That's a choice none of us should have to make."

TURI seeks funding proposals from Mass. community organizations

Grants from $1,000 to $15,000 for projects promoting safer, healthier neighborhoods

LOWELL - The Toxics Use Reduction Institute (TURI) at the University of Massachusetts Lowell seeks proposals from non-profit community, environmental and municipal organizations in Massachusetts interested in reducing the use of toxic chemicals in living or work spaces.

Two levels of funding are available — $1,000 grants for smaller toxics use reduction projects and up to $15,000 for larger projects. The proposal deadline is June 30. Projects span August 2009 through June 2010.

Sample project ideas include increasing the use of green cleaning products and pest control substances, encouraging organic lawn care methods on private or town properties, reducing the use of lead sinkers in recreational fishing and raising awareness of toxic materials used in hair and nail salons. The replication of past projects is encouraged.

Examples of eligible organizations include public housing authorities, water departments, neighborhood associations, labor unions, fire and police departments, libraries, boards of health, schools as well as youths with an interest in community service. All are encouraged to apply.

TURI is holding a pre-grant workshop on Thursday, May 28 from 2 to 4 p.m. at UMass Lowell to help with project ideas and the application. To sign up for the workshop or to learn more, contact Joy Onasch, TURI community program manager at joy@turi.org or 978-934-4343. Visit the TURI community web site to peruse past projects and download a grant application package, www.turi.org/community.

The Toxics Use Reduction Institute (TURI) at UMass Lowell provides the resources and tools to help Massachusetts companies and communities make the Commonwealth a safer place to live and work. The TURI Community Grant Program, now in its 15th year, has awarded nearly $750,000 in grants to 95 communities and municipalities across the state.

Stamp Out Hunger set for Saturday, May 9th

By Marilyn Loeser

Since 1993, the annual NALC Food Drive to "Stamp Out Hunger" has been held the second Saturday in May — this year May 9 — in more than 10,000 cities and towns in all 50 states.

And this year the need is even greater.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's annual study of hunger in America indicates the number of people struggling to make ends meet and put food on the table, has increased from 35.1 million to more than 35.5 million people, including 12 million children.

As more families count on food banks, pantries and shelters for support, the organizations are depending more on the community for help.

The success is in its simplicity

All you have to do is place a box or bag of non-perishable food next to your mailbox before your letter carrier, and in some areas rural carrier, delivers mail on Saturday, May 9. The carrier will do all the rest.

The food is taken back to a postal station, sorted, and then delivered to an area food bank or pantry. There it's made available for needy families.

Campbell Soup Company and the U.S. Postal Service are major supporters again this year. Other sponsors and supporters: Cox Target Media and its Valpak Direct Marketing Systems, the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, Feeding America, the United Way of America, the AFL-CIO Community Services network and countless local sponsors. How you can help more

Now is the time to check out the best sales in your local supermarket, match them with coupons and rebates, and stock up for the food drive.

Staples such as breakfast cereal, pasta, spaghetti sauce, peanut butter, and canned fruits and vegetables are often on sale.

If you don't have the time to match up sales in the paper with coupons, enlist the help of your children. Nearly every Sunday newspaper includes a section or two of coupons, plus the ones that come through the mail.

You can make your donation dollars stretch and provide much needed aid to members of your own community by purchasing sale items paired with coupons.

Former WHS athlete

Warnick doubles up her college sport load

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

Being a collegiate athlete takes a great deal of dedication. Endless hours in the gym, gallons of sweat poured onto the practice field and heaps of mental toughness and discipline are required to succeed. In the case of Amber Warnick, she works to succeed in not just one sport, but two which is an incredible feat.

Warnick, a Wilmington resident, who is soon to be a senior at Salem State College, has been a member of both the soccer and outdoor track teams since she arrived at college back in the Fall of 2006.

Over the years, Wilmington has had several collegiate athletes participate in more than one sport, including Leanne Harris back in the 90s at Salem State, and current three-sport star Lani Cabral-Pini, who is excelling in soccer, basketball and softball at Lasell College. Harris since has been named to both the WHS and Salem State College Hall of Famer, while Cabral-Pini has been a two-time Town Crier Female Athlete of the Year.

Although Warnick hasn't put up Hall of Fame numbers at Salem State, she is certainly making quite the impact in both sports.

"(Amber) is very hard working and doesn't get much time off," said Salem State College women's soccer coach Nicole Wood. "She performs well, she works her butt off, and she has a great sense of humor. She keeps everyone loose and reminds everyone that soccer is supposed to be fun."

While Warnick helped the women's soccer team finish with a 12-4-1 overall record as a forward, she is currently doing very well on the track, most especially as a member of the 4x100 relay team, while she recently qualified for the New England Championships in the 55-meters.

"I didn't plan on running track," said Warnick. "Two friends actually talked me into it."

Now because of those friends who pushed her to join the team, Warnick has become buddies with her teammates on the 4x100 relay team, including Shawna Kennedy of Quincy, Lindsey Tigges of Burlington and Nicole Lemelin of Beverly. The four of them placed first at the Jim Sheehan Memorial Meet held at Fitchburg State College on April 7th, and then improved their time by finishing first at the UMass-Dartmouth Corsair Classic on April 12th, with a combined time of 53.18 seconds.

Then at the New England Championships in late February, Warnick was a part of the 4 x 200 relay team that placed 12th with a time of 1:52:56, a season best for the group.

Normally collegiate athletes would be training for the upcoming season through the off-season. But not Warnick. Instead of kicking the soccer ball around indoors, she laces up the cleats, practices her baton exchanges, all the while helping the relay team constantly grab first places and headlines. She said that she's gotten used to the chaotic style.

"The (two sports) really don't really interfere," said Warnick. "They overlap a little bit in the spring, but both of my coaches are very understanding, so it works out."

It was the understanding that Warnick's had with Wood, which has kept her at SSC and as a Viking. When Wood was hired in 2007, some players who had committed to Salem decided to leave in search of other playing opportunities. Not Warnick.

"(Amber) is the only person left from my first year as head coach," said Wood. "Other players made other decisions, but (Amber) stuck with Salem State. I think that shows that Amber made a really well-rounded choice in picking this school. She didn't just pick it for soccer. And now she is one of our best players."

After her freshman season, Warnick really started to blossom at the collegiate level. She was named the Most Improved Player as a sophomore, and this past fall she registered two goals and one assist, playing in 15 of the team's 17 games.

"I don't think the conference realizes how good she is going to be," said Wood. "When she has the ball in open space, she is so dangerous."

Now this fall, Warnick's hard work and determination to get better on the field, has taken her to a new level - that is team captain.

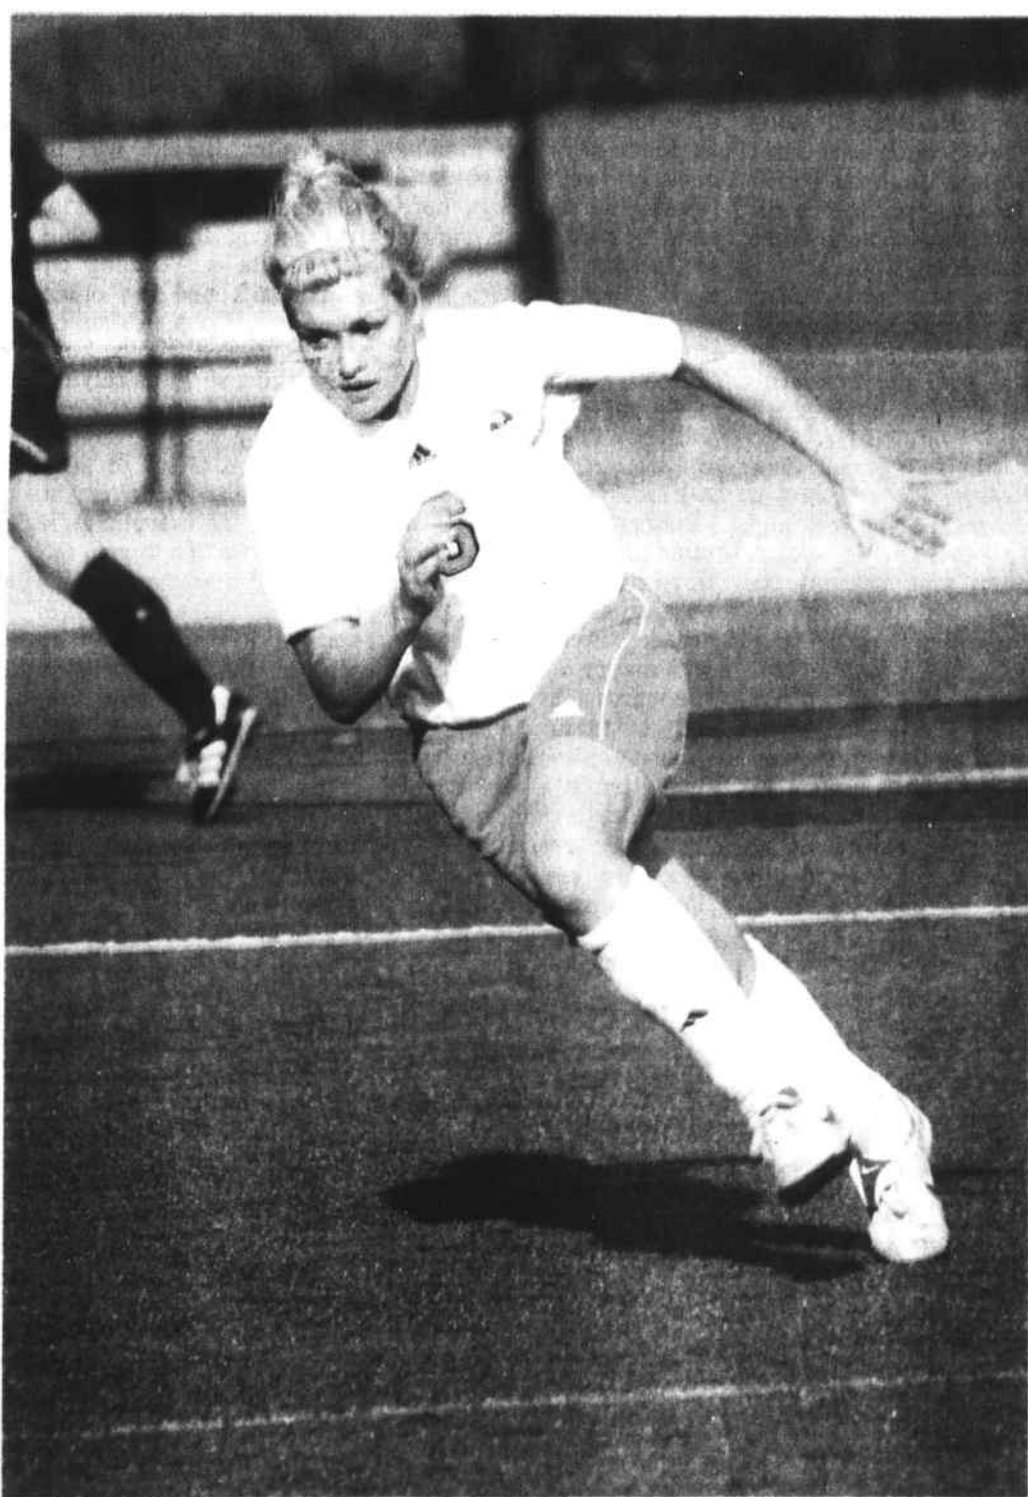

"I've known Leah since she was 14, I was her athletic trainer," said Wood. "(Amber) definitely helped Leah come here. Amber leads by example. She came in freshmen year out of shape. She never played club soccer. Now she is one of the hardest working players in practice."

As if simply being successful on the field isn't enough, Warnick is also very dedicated to her community. Coach Wood talked highly of Warnick's work ethic, and her community service work, including the mentoring program the soccer team participates in.

Warnick said, all of that starts from top, from her coaches, Wood and Dennis Floyd, the head track-and-field coach.

"I can go to either coach anytime and just talk about anything," said Warnick, who studies business and plans to find a job in finance once she graduates. "We are really close, they are like mentors to me, and not just coaches."

Warnick also talked about how throughout her entire athletic career, whether it be at Salem State or Wilmington High School, she has always had positive role models around her. "Coaches and upperclassmen have always helped me. I've been able to go to everyone. I learned that you need leadership to become a better player. Also, playing for (WHS Soccer Coach Sue) Hendee really helped me."

Now, Warnick can use the skills she learned to help younger players, including Wilmington resident Leah Potcner, who is the goalie for the Vikings.

"Leah and I are very close," said Warnick. "We are best friends. We hang out all the time."

Manchester-Essex too tough for the Wildcats on the court

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High girls tennis team had won two matches in a row heading into Monday's clash at home against Cape Ann league power Manchester Essex, but the Wildcats were unable to keep their momentum going against their powerful opponents, dropping a 5-0 decision which put their overall record on the season to 2-4.

Despite the shutout loss, the Wildcats did have several players play well, they simply had the misfortune of coming up against a very talented opponent. Manchester Essex always has one of the most talented teams in the league if not the state, and coach Kevin Welch was not surprised to see another dominating effort out of their foes.

"It was not a big surprise to see how talented they are," Welch said. "It looks like they are preparing for another state title run."

First singles player Erin McMahon was a perfect example of the type of talented opponents the Wildcats faced all day, as they lost in straight sets to her eighth grade opponent. This was not your ordinary eighth grader, however as Manchester's Brittany Collens is the 8th ranked under 14 players in all of New England.

Junior Jessica Burke also had some strong play despite losing in straight sets by a score of 6-2, 6-4.

"Erin played some good points but her opponent had too much game for her," Welch said. "I was very happy with Jessica she lost (6-2, 6-4) she played a great second set and could have won it. If she plays like she did in this match she can play with any No. 2 in our league."

In third singles, senior Jackie Mailey gave it all she had, but she could not avoid going down to defeat by a score of 6-0, 6-2.

"Manchester is very deep so Jackie had her work cut out for her," Welch said. "She played well but just got beat by a player with a more complete game."

Wildcats split four games in a crazy week of play

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Stephen Stewart and Evan Butters both tossed complete game shut outs in the team's two wins, but their teammates then forced 12 combined unearned runs in the two losses to North Reading and Triton Regional in a bizarre week of play for the Wildcat varsity baseball team.

Wilmington played four games in five days, and finished 2-2 putting the team's overall record to 5-4.

"We had three (consecutive) wins going into the North Reading game, and then against them, the effort was just not there," said coach Aldo Caira. "Then we came back and had a real nice win against Lynnfield. Stewart pitched great - I think a four-hitter. We played great with no errors and that was after we made six errors against North Reading."

"Then (on Monday) we thought we could get something going against Triton, who had just one win coming into the game, and several tough losses. And then we threw another stinker and it's just mindboggling. It's tough to figure this team out right now. We're not putting the three (pitching, offense and defense) together. We'll get pitching and offense but no defense, or we'll get pitching and defense but no hitting - kind of like today. We had five hits - if we had ten hits like we did (on Monday) we could have blown this game wide open."

The week started with a dismal 12-2 loss to North Reading (7-1) at home on Friday. Jeff Kannally went the first 3.1 innings giving up nine runs but only two were earned, as the Wildcats defense made six errors. He was lifted in the fourth inning with the Wildcats needing a touchdown, extra point and a field goal just to tie the game up. Offensively, Wilmington managed just five hits with Michael Murphy the lone batter to have more than one as he finished 2-for-3.

The next day, it was Wilmington who led by a touchdown and an extra point, dropping Lynnfield, 7-0, behind a four-hit shut out by southpaw Stephen Stewart, who improved his mark to 2-0 and dropped his ERA to 0.51 after sitting out the first few games with an elbow problem. He was helped out offensively by Jon Spurr, Mike Scola, Pat Parker and Nick Boutoures, who each had two hits. Parker and Spurr both drove in two runs, and Boutoures scored twice.

On Monday, Wilmington put forth a dreadful performance and were defeated by Triton Regional, 10-4. Murphy was the losing pitcher as he gave up ten runs but only five were earned, as Triton stormed out with two runs in the first, five more in the second, before adding three more to go up 10-1 after the fourth inning. Dan Cushing was 3-for-3 with 2 RBI, and Stewart finished 2-for-4 with a RBI.

On Tuesday afternoon, Kannally was slated to get his fourth start of the season but was pushed back after complaining of soreness in his right arm. That forced Caira to put Evan Butters on the mound, and all he did was toss a four-hit shut out, which included no walks and no strikeouts but he did hit two batters. He gave up one just one extra base hit, and was helped out by two tremendous double plays, one coming in the third and the other in the sixth inning.

Meanwhile at the plate, Wilmington scored what turned out to be the game winning run in the bottom of the first. After Ryan Searles singled and stole second, he scored on a RBI single to center field by Spurr. Wilmington didn't get another hit until the fifth inning after Liam Gately doubled to left. He advanced to third on a nice bunt by Vinny Scifo. Scifo then took off for second base on the first pitch to the next batter, Searles, but Gately was picked off at third base. Searles then singled in Scifo to make it a 2-0 game.

Wilmington had just five hits in the game with Searles, Spurr, Stewart, Gately and Scifo having one each.

Wilmington is back in action with a road trip to Rockport on Thursday, before hosting Manchester-Essex on Saturday afternoon beginning at 3:00 pm.

Emergency starter comes through

Butters slips through and tosses a four-hit shut out

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It had already been a crazy week of play for the Wilmington High School varsity baseball team, who made six errors and gave up 12 runs against North Reading, only to come back and play error free ball and blank Lynnfield, 7-0, only to lay dozens of eggs in the team's 10-4 loss to a one-win Triton Regional team on Monday. And when the team's top two pitchers complained of arm trouble before Tuesday's game, forcing Jeff Kannally to miss his turn on the mound and Michael Murphy to be the team's DH instead of shortstop, head coach Aldo Caira had to look down the bench and find any arm he could. He found a golden one - that of junior Evan Butters.

Butters, who threw four innings of relief in his varsity debut against North Reading just four days earlier, tossed a four-hit shut out in his first varsity start helping Wilmington shut out Amesbury, 2-0, at Scanlon Memorial Field and improve to 5-4 on the season.

Butters gave up one extra base hit and three singles, while he didn't walk a batter, nor did he strike out a batter. He did hit two batters, but was helped out in the field by two terrific double plays, and 11 groundball outs. He threw 70 pitches entering the seventh inning in which he retired the Indians in order on three groundball outs.

"Evan was a last minute starter," said Caira. "It was Jeff's turn to pitch - but because of games that got backed up, he had to go on Friday against North Reading. Jeff said that he thought he would be able to pitch but wouldn't be able to bounce back for the next game. So I pushed him back a day, so now I was left looking for someone. Murphy threw a lot (on Monday) and he asked out of shortstop saying that his arm was sore, so that eliminated Vinny Scifo from pitching because he's the shortstop (with Murphy out). So that left Evan."

Butters - who is coming off a terrific football season as the team's top running back as well as being a reserve on the boys hoop team - kept things simple on Tuesday. He threw first pitch strikes, with the majority of pitches fastballs around the knees of the Amesbury hitters. Very rarely did he throw a curve ball, but he toss one now and then to keep the batters in check.

Butters faced one over the minimum through the first three innings, before giving up a single and hitting the second batter to put two one with no one out in the top of the fourth. Then he got the next batter to hit a sharp ground ball to shortstop and Scifo started a 6-4-3 double play with one of two nice turns by second baseman Jon Spurr in the middle. That defensive play was much more important at the time, than throwing a high fastball by the hitter for strike three.

"No, I'm not a strikeout pitcher - more of a pitch to contact (pitcher), and then my guys behind me were great," said Butters. "They made all of the plays including the two double plays."

Still leading 1-0, now in the top of the fifth inning, Butters gave up a lead-off double. He got the next batter to fly out deep to center field, which allowed the runner to move up to third. Then Butters got some help, as left fielder Ryan Searles caught the next fly ball and kept the runner from third on a strong throw into the cut-off man, Scifo. Thereafter, Butters was in complete control, giving up a harmless infield single, and getting the remaining seven outs, six coming on groundballs and the other on an infield pop up.

"My curveball really wasn't working so I was relying on my fastball and just keeping it low," said Butters. "We wanted to try to keep the fastball low. With it being hot and everything, it was hard for me to grip the ball, so that's why I wasn't throwing many curveballs because it would be left up high as the ball kept slipping out of my fingers."

During the top of the seventh, Caira had closer Danny Cushing warming up, but he stuck with Butters, who certainly took advantage of the opportunity given to him.

"I told Evan before the game that it would be great if he could give me four innings," said Caira. "Evan was very conservative with his pitches and his defense helped him out a lot. He didn't strike anyone out, he did hit two batters but he didn't walk any and he threw strikes. You win ballgames pitching that way. He relied on his fastball, and he kept throwing it at their knees and that's what you need to do. I thought he did a great job today."

Butters - whose father Bobby was a terrific ballplayer at WHS, his uncle Bruce was a Top Gun in the military and sister Amy sang the National Anthems so beautifully before the basketball games several years ago - said he felt great entering the last inning, despite the 90 degree temperatures.

"I felt great going to the last inning. I just wanted to keep my pitch count low," he said.

He did keep his pitch count low, and he felt even better after being congratulated by his teammates for his first varsity start, first varsity complete game and first varsity shut out, all coming on the same day.

"Jeff Kannally's arm was pretty sore today so coach asked me how I felt. I told him I was feeling pretty good so I would give it a shot," said Butters.

That he did - in very impressive fashion.

bles as well as Alex Copp and Christine Woods in second doubles were unable to pick up victories on this day, but Welch saw things in their play that give him reason to think that more wins are on the horizon.

"Both double lost convincingly but played well. They played good points but just could not string them together to win games," Welch said. "I am still confident in our doubles, by playing competitively against the top teams in the state it will only make us stronger."

Boys Tennis

The boys tennis team at Wilmington High is still seeking their first victory of the season and unfortunately for them, it was not going to come against a boys team from Manchester that was equally as talented as the girls squad. The Wildcats dropped a 5-0 decision to their CAL rivals.

Senior captain and first singles player Kenny Vassallo returned to the lineup after being out due to illness, and although the results were not exactly what he would like to have seen, with a 6-3, 6-2 loss, Wildcats coach Matt Hackett was pleased to have his top player back on the court.

"I think the entire team is happy to have Kenny back playing again. Manchester was a tough first match back for him, but he actually played quite well," Hackett said. "He actually took leads early in both sets before the power of his opponent became too much for him. Overall, it was a nice effort."

Dana Ferranti in second singles and Jon Rizzo in third singles also both had strong efforts despite losing in straight sets.

"Dana Ferranti and Jon Rizzo are progressing nicely as well even though the scores do not indicate it," Hackett said. "They are becoming more confident and consistent players in many aspects of their games."

WHS Softball

The Wilmington High School girls softball team finished 2-1 this past week losing to Ipswich, 5-4, before coming back to defeat both North Reading and Triton by scores of 8-5 and 6-4, respectively.

In the victory against North Reading, Emily Crannell (2 hits), Brittney McLaughlin and Tori Lord each had a RBI to lead the offense. Kaitlyn Souza scored a pair of runs, while Bree Parow played great defense at first base. On the mound, Chelsie Babcock earned the win, while she got help from Lord, who picked up the save.

In the win against Triton,

Chelsie Babcock picked up the win in relief tossing two scoreless innings as she watched her teammates score two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to give the team the victory. Emily Crannell finished 3-for-4, while Babcock scored two runs and Brittney McLaughlin added two hits and knocked in three runs. Kaitlyn Souza also chipped in with a RBI.

Wilmington is now 5-3 overall.

Letter to the Sports Editor

How come Bruce's dismissal is left for speculation?

Dear Jamie:

Very rarely am I compelled to write a letter to the you unless I believe something is just not right. Whereas an opinion is just an opinion and people may judge the opinion based on the person expressing it, I would, however, rather have my name held by request. That being said, I have been closely following the Chip Bruce situation and have been waiting like many others for a reason for his contract as JV soccer coach not being renewed. I have nothing to gain or anyone to impress by writing to you, but would like to address my comments to those who have the authority to give this reason about Chip's dismissal.

Obviously, (the authority) is not Chip Bruce, as he has publicly asked for the reason for not being asked back as JV soccer coach. No reasons have been or will be given! Why not? Why allow people to SPECULATE? Where is the professionalism in this matter hiding? Why isn't Chip Bruce being supported by those who should be supporting him, especially if he has been doing a good job, for what, 20-plus years? If Chip Bruce is being dismissed - COME ON NOW, what does this Wilmington administration expect people to think or a better word speculate!

Chip Bruce is a true character authority figure who isn't afraid to stand up for what he believes is right and above all he understands the importance of "tough love" especially when it comes to helping so called "bad" kids find their way through the teenage years. I realize that a coach is more than a coach to many kids, but unfortunately, we are in a society today where many seem to look for the bad in a person when there is a disagreement or a difference in philosophies. So with this in mind - let me speculate, like everyone else is, if someone owed someone a favor - deal done!

Now my question is why are people who can make an impact on this entire non-hiring issue not speaking up? My speculation: fear of repercussions? Or maybe it's because they feel if they do speak up they may lose their jobs? Obviously I am just giving another example of speculation, but how do you expect people to react or think when they have come to respect a man that has given so much to so many?

I am a long time educator and coach from a neighboring town and have had several communications with not only Chip Bruce, but many other fine coaches in the Wilmington Public School System. I have listened to outstanding raves of Chip Bruce's devotion to the Wilmington public as a police officer and especially to the many Wilmington kids who look up to him as a mentor and great role model. As for myself, I am a professional who whether successful or not, tries to make a difference in the lives of kids and I have the experience to know when I communicate with a similar person, that Chip Bruce does make a difference.

To the Wilmington administration, I say to you, let all those people who have grown to appreciate the qualities of Chip Bruce, a man who has made a difference the decency, be given a reason for his contract not being renewed. We all need to know that there is no reason for the dismissal and we should think anything less of the man or in retrospect of you, the Wilmington administrators. Integrity has to be brought to the forefront and the public needs to know the reasoning for the non-rehiring. Once that happens, it will put an end to any unnecessary speculation. Decisions are made for a reason and when reasons are not given, let the speculations begin. Please, for the sake of us that care about Wilmington and those who run the establishments - DO THE RIGHT THING!!!

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Softball team cruising past CAC opponents

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech softball team continued their perfect run through their schedule this past week, picking up four more wins, including a couple of impressive non-league victories to push their record to a perfect 10-0 at the halfway point of the season and officially clinch a spot in the Division 3 North Tournament in the process.

The Lady Rams picked up wins over CAC rivals Lynn Tech on Monday and Greater Lawrence on Tuesday, but even more impressively, if not more importantly the Lady Rams also earned wins over non-league foes Bishop Fenwick on Sunday and Arlington Catholic last Friday.

Against Arlington Catholic, Shawsheen came away with a 3-0 victory over their Division 2 rivals, scoring a pair of runs in the fifth inning and adding another insurance run in the sixth on their way to the win. Senior pitcher Kelli Jo Deardorff had the first of her three outstanding games on the week, allowing only two hits in the complete game victory while striking out ten batters and walking only one.

Deardorff also contribute offensively, getting hit and scoring a run, while sophomore catcher Allyson Trayah of Tewksbury began a sensation week with a hit and a run scored from her leadoff position and Brooke Mallahan also score a run from the number two position in the batting order.

"Arlington Catholic is a very strong Division 2 team so this was a big win for us," Shawsheen coach Maureen Buckley said. "Kelli was excellent. She was hitting her spots really well and we got some timely hitting. It was like a tournament game for us with everyone on the edge of their seats the entire game."

Against Fenwick on Sunday, the Lady Rams got a similar outstanding pitching effort from Deardorff against another quality non-league opponent. Deardorff struck out 12 while allowing five hits in her second consecutive complete game victory, this one by a score of 5-0.

Trayah and Mallahan were once again outstanding at the top of the order with Trayah going 1-for-2 with a pair of walks and two runs scored, while Mallahan went 2-for-4 with two RBI in the game.

"They are both chipping in and getting on base whether it is with hits or by forcing errors because of their speed or if they are not getting on base they are sacrificing somebody over," Buckley said. "Those kinds of plays are huge in a close game. They are both doing a very good job at the plate and Allyson is also doing an outstanding job catching for us."

Much like the AC game, Buckley was pleased with the way her team performed against step up in competition. "Again it was a tournament type game against a team that plays at an extremely high level all season long," Buckley said. "Our girls played very well fundamentally and even when we did make a couple of mistakes we did not get discouraged. They had some runners on base at a couple of different times, but we made the plays we had to."

In the Lady Rams 14-1 win over Lynn Tech on Monday, they got another outstanding pitching performance, but this time it came from junior Sara Elwell of Tewksbury, who tossed a complete game one hitter while striking out 16.

"Sara was outstanding," Buckley said. "She controlled the game. To have two pitchers like Sara and Kelli is a luxury that most teams just don't really have."

A pair of freshman, Casey Brown and Franny Pesantes both has great games for Shawsheen, with Brown going 2-for-4 with a run and an RBI, while Pesantes went 2-for-3 with a run scored and an RBI.

On Tuesday, the Lady Rams routed Greater Lawrence by a score of 9-2 with Deardorff retuning to the pitcher's circle and dominating on an extremely hot day. Pesantes had another big day at the plate, going 2-for-3 with two RBI, while Mallahan also went 2-for-3 with a pair of RBI.

Baseball

The Shawsheen baseball team is having an outstanding season in their own right, with a 7-2 (6-2 CAC Large) record as they approach the midway point of their season. The Rams picked up two more wins this week over CAC rivals with a 16-8 win over Lynn Tech on Monday followed by a 20-7 drubbing of Greater Lawrence on Tuesday.

In the win over Greater Lawrence the Rams banged out 19 hits on their way to the blowout victory, led by lead-off batter Dan Walkley's 3-for-3 day. Walkley also scored four runs and drove in a pair. It was the second great game in a row for Walkley who had a single, double, home run and six RBI in the win over Lynn Tech.

"Dan is playing real well," Shawsheen coach Jim Sullivan said. "I had him batting lower in the order at the beginning of the season, but he had a high on base percentage, so I moved him up to leadoff and he has really flourished there."

Senior Kevin White of Tewksbury went 3-for-6 with a double and four RBI on the day. Like Walkley, it was the second game in row where he had an offensive outburst, after chipping in with a triple, two singles and a pair of RBI in the Lynn Tech game.

"He has had two good games in a row, which is great to see," Sullivan said. "He was in a little slump at the beginning of the year, but he has broken out of it with a vengeance and has really sparked us."

Justin Chenover had a good day both on the mound and at the plate, going 2-for-3 with four RBI, while tossing a complete game six hitter while striking out seven and allowing four runs.

"Our offense has been playing real well. We are getting some timely hitting and that has helped take the pressure off our pitchers," Sullivan said.

The day before the Greater Lawrence game, the Rams had served notice on just how explosive their offense could be when they banged out 13 hits in the 16-8 win over Lynn Tech.

Along with White and Walkley, starting pitcher Ryan Bright also had a fine day at the plate, banging out two hits and scoring a pair of runs. The offensive output aided his pitching effort where he struck out 10 batters an allowed six runs in a complete game victory.

"Our pitchers are hanging in there," Sullivan said. "They are keeping the ball in play and giving us a chance to make the plays behind them. The run support they have gotten has allowed me to stick with them a little longer than I normally would and that has allowed us to save some of our other arms."

Heading into the season Sullivan expected that his inexperience team would improve as the season went on and he feels that has certainly been the case to this point.

"We are clearly getting better with each game and that is a result of them working hard at practice to get better," Sullivan said. "A lot of the things they are doing don't show up in the box score. Their game sense is improving and they also know they can rely on each other. They are playing very well."

Co-Ed Tennis

The Shawsheen co-ed tennis team is off to a 3-1 start on the season, with their most recent win coming on Tuesday afternoon on the road against Minuteman with the Rams pulling out a 4-3 victory over their CAC rivals.

Shawsheen got a well balanced performance throughout their lineup, picking up a pair of victories in both singles and doubles, and winning their matches in dominating fashion and picking up the clinching win in third doubles as the combination of freshman Dana Jean of Tewksbury along with sophomore Sarah Middleton scored an impressive 10-3 triumph for their first ever varsity win.

"It came down to that third doubles match and it was great to see them get the win like that for the team and for their first varsity win," Shawsheen coach J.P. Boriello said. "They are both in their first year with the varsity and they keep getting better. They are doing a nice job for us."

Picking up singles victories for the Rams were sophomore Joseph Villeneuve of Tewksbury in first singles by a score of 10-4 and senior Mike Rose in third singles by a score of 10-3. Both players had moved up in the lineup due to the absence of regular number one singles player, senior captain Kyle Stocki of Tewksbury who missed the match due to injury.

Villeneuve normally fills the number two singles role for the Rams while Rose had been playing primarily doubles for the Rams. Boriello was impressed with the way both players reacted to stepping up their level of competition.

"Joseph stepped up and did a real nice job for us today," Boriello said. "And Mike did as well. We had to shuffle everybody around and they did well. Mike did so well that he might just stay in the singles spot from now on."

The Rams other victory came in second doubles where sophomore Mark Weber of Wilmington, along with senior Jess Lee earned a 10-4 win. It was just the second time the pair had played together this season, but they certainly seemed to adapt very well, just as they had in their previous pairing.

"They have played well when we put them together," Boriello said. "They beat Greater Lawrence a couple of weeks ago and today they did a real nice job."

With a 3-1 record thus far, and their only loss coming to perennial nemesis Greater Lowell, Boriello is happy with where his team stands at the moment, although he would feel even better if they were to pick up a victory in the rematch against Greater Lowell which was being played on Wednesday afternoon on the brand new tennis courts at Shawsheen Tech.

"The morale of the team is good and we have a lot of our young players playing well, which will help us out this year and also next year when we are going to lose a lot of good seniors like Kyle Stocki," Boriello said. "We are looking forward to seeing Greater Lowell again. The kids are excited about facing them on our new courts and maybe that will make the difference for us."

Rawding helps Emerson qualify for post season play

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

Thanks to the efforts of Tewksbury's Jillisa Rawding, the Emerson women's softball team has qualified for the NCAA Division III Championship Tournament.

Emerson qualified for the tournament after winning the Greater Northeast Athletic Conference championship game. Rawding, a sophomore on the team, scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning in a 2-1 win over St. Joseph's.

Rawding is third on the team with a .415 batting average and was selected to the 2009 GNAC all-conference team.

Danielle DelPonte moved into second place on UConn's all-time home run list with a two-run blast in a 14-2 win over St. John's on Saturday. The homer was DelPonte's fifth on the year and 20th in her career.

The senior from Tewksbury leads the Huskies with 27 RBI. They are wrapping up regular season play this week, with the Big East Championship being held next week.

Tewksbury's Pat Devlin had three hits and scored three runs as the UMass Lowell baseball team defeated Pace 5-2 on Saturday. The freshman went 3-3, doubling and scoring in the first, walking and scoring in the second and singling and scoring in the third.

Devlin continues to lead the team with a .338 average. He also leads the team in runs (32), hits (50), home runs (two), OBP (.420) and stolen bases (18).

Lesley University's Lani Cabral-Pini had two strong games against Bay Path College last Saturday in a softball doubleheader. In game one, the Wilmington native went 2-for-3 with two runs and an RBI. In game two, she went 3-for-5 with three runs. Lesley was victorious in both games.

Wilmington's Brian Schell is finishing off a memorable track career at Fitchburg State. He won the 600 meter title at the MASCAC championships during his indoor season, and has followed that up with an 800 meter title during the spring season. Schell's time of 1:57.4 was a personal best and qualified him for the New England Championships.

Tom Barry continued his very impressive freshman season on the UMass Dartmouth track team at Saturday's Little East Conference/New England Alliance Championships. The Wilmington resident finished in second place in the javelin with a throw of 163-2.

Alex Sacco is wrapping up her senior season as a member of the New England College softball team. Despite the team sporting a record of 10-21, Sacco had a very successful year. The Tewksbury native batted .344 with two home runs and 14

RBI. She was second on the team in homers and RBI and third in average.

Six local runners competed in last week's "Rose Maguire's Great Mill Girl Chase 5K" held in Lowell. On the Tewksbury side, Ryan Sullivan finished in 67th place with a time of 24:53. Honey Rider's time of 25:38 placed her 84th. Don Dooley crossed the line in 123rd place with a time of 28:31. Mary Jane Watson's time of 33:53 placed her 154th.

Two runners from Wilmington also took part in the race. Trenton Hoyt finished in 33rd place with a time of 22:02. Kathleen Graziano ran a time of 29:15, placing 132nd.

Run-A-Pleasant Mile raises $2,200

By BECCA QUIGLEY
Sports Correspondent

This past Sunday, the Tewksbury Memorial High School's girls track team hosted one of their biggest annual fundraisers, Run a Pleasant Mile. The fundraiser consisted of a one-mile race and 5K race in which 172 runners participated, perhaps the biggest turnout the TMHS track has ever seen at their annual road race. With over $2,200 raised in profits, the team is able to set aside a considerable amount of money for scholarships for the senior athletes on the team as well as provide funding for new equipment and travel expenses for Tewksbury athletes competing in the upcoming nationals.

The 2009 Run a Pleasant Mile was organized by indoor and outdoor track coach Peter Molloy. Since he took over this responsibility three years ago from former track and cross country coach Bob McDougall, Molloy has noticed the race grow significantly.

"Our first year we started off with a small amount of people, probably about 30, and then last year we had around 100," said Molloy. "But this year we grew to 142 finishers in the 5K; and the size of the race dictates how much money we will raise so I'd say this year was the most successful."

Molloy along with several parents of the girls on the track team had been holding monthly meetings since January preparing for Sunday's event. At the meetings they tried to find sponsors, found a company to produce the t-shirts at reasonable cost, ordered the awards, obtained efficient timing equipment and contacted websites and newspapers for means of advertising the event. In addition, they had to receive approval from the Board of Selectmen to hold the race as well as rent out the high school cafeteria to house the refreshments and have the brief awards ceremony and raffles following the race.

"There are a lot of behind the scenes things that have to be figured out before the race," said Molloy, "and with-out the help of parents and the other track coaches Steve Levine and John Byrnes, I don't think we could have been able to attract as many participants."

Molloy states the most difficult part of organizing Run a Pleasant Mile was trying to line up as many sponsors as possible to make the fundraiser successful. Sponsors for this year's race include: AJC Builders, Cracker Barrel, Donna's Donuts, Embroid Me, Ferncroft Holdigns, Hannaford, Holiday Inn, Ira Nissan, Madeline Brooks Insurance, Mahoney's Too Garden Center, Marathon Sports, New England Runner, Perfecto's, Picadilly Pub, Pizza Mia, Ryan School PAC, Shaw's, Tewksbury Convenience, and Whirlaway Golf and Running Center.

"The businesses in Tewksbury are extremely generous," said Molloy. "I know it must be hard for them to do this in today's economy and with so many other organizations trying to raise money for other causes."

The one-mile race began at around 9:00 a.m. and consisted of over 30 children aged 12 and under. At around 9:30, runners of all ages walked to the start of the 5K race, which was at the entrance of the high school on Pleasant Street, and waited for the gun to sound before running what the track team calls the "Pine Loop," a three-mile circle beginning on Pleasant and going through Helvetia Road, Chandler Street, Pine Street and Whipple Road before coming through the finish line onto Pleasant Street.

The first finisher with a time of 17:40 was a 30-year-old male from Wakefield, Massachusetts, named Geoff Nickerson. This was Nickerson's second consecutive year participating in Run a Pleasant Mile, and he participates in numerous other road races as well.

"I started running when I was fairly young, and I ran cross country, indoor and outdoor track at Bishop Guertin High School in Nashua, New Hampshire," said Nickerson. "I also ran at Dartmouth College and graduate school. Now, I run about 40 miles a week, and I love doing races like these because I think it is great to support the local track team."

Finishing after Nickerson were Dale Dechellis from Tewksbury (34, 17:56), Dan Verrington from Bradford (46, 19:59), Sean Carriker from Tewksbury (16, 20:15), and Kevin Maciel (17, 20:52).

The first female finisher with a time of 21:31 was a 45-year old Tewksbury resident Trish Bourne, who has been taking part in Run a Pleasant Mile for almost ten consecutive years. Though she had no formal training in cross country or track and field during her high school career at Melrose High School, she now runs approximately four days a week and has competed in nine marathons along with several other road races.

Wilmington runners who completed the race include: Alison Powers (25:10), Eric Grabar (25:44), John Skinner (28:16), Jennifer Tassone (29:49), Rachel Grabar (39:16) and Marty Bamberg (39:17).

"I think if I had run on the track team when I was younger, I wouldn't enjoy running as much as I do now," said Bourne. "I have always been just a road race runner, and I know I will continue to run in this race in years to come!"

On race day alone, over 50 volunteers, mostly parents and athletes of the boys' and girls' track teams, dedicated their time to helping out with the fundraiser in various ways. Some worked at the registration and refreshments tables while others were involved in the race itself by controlling traffic on the roads and handing out water to participants along the course and at the finish line.

Molloy was especially impressed with this year's turnout in regards to the volunteers as well as the runners.

"The heat worried me; it was extremely hot out there and I was nervous that it would be too hot for most people to run the race," said Molloy. "However, we still managed to have our largest race yet and saw the largest number of volunteers we've ever had, which shows a lot." After the success of this year's Run a Pleasant Mile, Molloy is certain that he will continue to organize it for as long as he can see.

"I don't see myself going anywhere for a while, so as long as I'm here I will continue to do this fundraiser in future years," he said. "I can't see us not doing it, it is our biggest fundraiser, it's fun for people of all ages, and the one-mile race is especially good because we can spark some interest for running in the younger kids and we get to see the future of Tewksbury cross country and track."

The final entrant and final runner in the KIDS Run A Pleasant Mile is two years old (that's right 2!!!) Avery DellaPiana of Tewksbury - she ran the entire way! Way to go, Avery!

Two Tewksbury girls named PMC Pedal Partners

Ashley Cashell, 3, and Megan McCarthy, 16, both of Tewksbury, have been named Pedal Partners of the 30th annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge.

As PMC Pedal Partners, Ashley and Megan will inspire more than 5,500 cyclists to ride up to 190-miles across Massachusetts and raise money for cancer care and research through Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund.

Ashley was diagnosed with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia in October 2009 and Megan was diagnosed with Glioblastoma Multiforme in June 2007 and both are being treated at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's pediatric oncology center, the Jimmy Fund Clinic. The PMC Pedal Partner Program matches Jimmy Fund Clinic patients with PMC cyclists who will ride in their honor.

The Pedal Partner Program offers an inspiring opportunity for PMC cyclists to connect with young children who are being treated for cancer at the Jimmy Fund Clinic. For the children, being a designated PMC Pedal Partner is an exciting experience that distracts them from their rigorous treatments while introducing them to new friends who will be among their biggest cheerleaders.

The Pedal Partners become a part of a large group of people committed to fighting the disease for which they are being treated. PMC cyclists offer companionship and support to the children and their families. More often than not, PMC cyclists and Pedal Partner families form long-lasting friendships.

Reading's Civil Air Patrol honored

Above and beyond the call

By PAUL FEELY

Two members of a Middlesex East-area Civil Air Patrol Squadron went above and beyond the call of duty recently, winning top awards at a two-day conference.

Reading's Civil Air Patrol CCG Squadron was honored with a first place trophy in recognition of their efforts in the Aerospace Project Competition at the Massachusetts Wing Conference held March 20-22 in Springfield.

This competition, conducted at every annual Wing conference, has different theme each year. The theme this year was "What Aerospace Education Means to Our Squadron."

"In past years it had always been a challenge to take a group of people interested primarily in the Emergency Services aspect of Civil Air Patrol and turn them into experts on various parts of the Aerospace Education program, and this year was no different," said Capt. Kevin H. Vendt, CAP, Chaplain of the Camp Curtis Guild Composite Squadron of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol.

The cadet placed in charge of this task was Cadet Technical Sergeant Nick Yandell of Wakefield.

"I first got interested in civil air patrol when I was about 12," said C/T Sgt Yandell. "I saw all the cool stuff that the cadets got to do and that was all I needed - I signed up a few minutes later."

"Under his leadership, a group of six motivated cadets were able to take a multi-dimensional project, covering aspects of aerodynamics, rocketry, and propulsion, from planning all the way to testing and display," said Capt. Vendt.

To tie into the theme for the conference, it was emphasized that cadets liked to both learn and teach on what interested them about aerospace in a "hands-on" approach.

Under Yandell, a balloon-powered car (to demonstrate "thrust," one of the four forces of flight), an alkaline battery and water powered "rocket," and a fully-functional wind tunnel with smoke to show airflow over and under the wings of a model plane were built, along with a poster to connect it with the theme.

"When my team of cadets and I were working on the project, we wanted to make it so that it was a very hands on experience," said Yandell. "With the balloon cars the person who was veiling the project could blow up the balloon, place the car on the track, and let it race down the designated strip. It also showed how the forces of thrust work on an aircraft in a method that anybody at their house could re-create."

The CCG Squadron went up against several other well-made projects, but was able to emerge as the victor. This now earns them the chance to compete against the nine other wings at the Region AE competition in Sept.

Cadet 1st Lt. Nick Russo of Wakefield also took away honors at the conference.

Russo competed in the Cadet Speaking competition. This consisted of a ten-minute prepared speech with visual displays on a topic chosen by the cadet, as well as a three-minute impromptu speech on a topic that the cadet selected out of a hat during the competition.

"Cadet Russo did a fantastic job keeping the audience's attention in both of his speeches," said Capt. Vendt. "He proved to be very articulate and humorous with his presentations."

For his efforts he received the 2nd place trophy for the competition missing first by a small margin.

The Civil Air Patrol is the official auxiliary of the United States Air Force, and has three specific missions that it carries out in squadrons throughout the country: Cadet Programs, Aerospace Education, and Search and Rescue. The Cadet Program strives to instill leadership and strong character in youths aged 12 through 21, while also providing them training in Search and Rescue and in Aerospace. CAP's Aerospace Education activity brings awareness and knowledge of aviation and related fields to youths and adults.

Yandell plans on pursuing a career with the skills he has learned.

"After I get out of high school I am planning on joining the U.S. Marine Corps," said Yandell. "The experience I have gained from Civil Air Patrol will most definitely help me in the service."

The CAP's primary mission, however, is search and rescue. Fully ninety percent of all inland search and rescue efforts are conducted by Civil Air Patrol teams, primarily by adult or "Senior" members but with assistance from properly trained Cadet members as appropriate.

CAP mobilizes some 60,000 senior (adult) and cadet members for its three primary missions: Emergency Services, Cadet Programs and Aerospace Education.

CAP aircraft fly search missions for an average $70 per hour (one-tenth of the $700 per hour for a larger Air Force plane typically used.)

CAP aircraft and personnel are mobilized for natural disasters, civil defense, and to aid local government emergency services when requested. CAP also flies in support of federal agencies, including their efforts in the war on drugs.

Today, the CAP Cadet program involves some 25,000 young people in a structured

"THE SOLOIST" A MOVING STORY WITH GREAT ACTING

"THE SOLOIST" stars Jamie Foxx and Robert Downey Jr. It's the story of a brilliant young musician felled by schizophrenia and a disillusioned reporter. A great flick!

"THE SOLOIST"
GRADE: ****

Movies about the homeless or the mentally ill can sometimes come off as being too goody-goody or heavy-handed with their righteous messages - that's not the case with 'The Soloist'.

Director Joe Wright, working with a great script and excellent performances from Robert Downey Jr. and Jamie Foxx (who may both end up nominated for Oscars from this one), this real-life story quickly establishes itself as one of the year's best movies.

Downey portrays Los Angeles Times columnist Steve Lopez as a man who loves his job and little else. He's divorced from an editor at the paper (Catherine Keener) and rarely sees his child. He's constantly on the prowl for topics to write about, and his drive for a spot on the front page means he's always moving on to another subject, another person, another situation.

Hearing music in a downtown park, Lopez discovers a homeless man (Foxx) sitting beneath a statue of Beethoven and playing a violin with only two strings. He's clearly mentally ill. His wardrobe is made up of sequins, Day-Glo construction vests and an ever-present frayed purple lei, but he sure can play.

He says his name is Nathaniel Ayers and claims he once attended the prestigious Juilliard School of Music. Lopez's journalistic instincts immediately kick in. There's a story here.

The more Lopez learns about Ayers, the more there is to write. There's Ayers' childhood - he was a brilliant young musician felled by schizophrenia while at Juilliard. And his yearning to hear an orchestra play in the new Disney Concert Hall (because Ayers' ticks and odd behavior might offend paying concertgoers, Lopez arranges for him to sit in on rehearsals). A Times reader, now crippled by arthritis, donates her cello to Ayers.

The core story of the film is a tale about a man who wants no responsibilities outside work but finds himself befriending and caring for someone whose life is in near-constant crisis. Lopez arranges a safe rehearsal space for Ayers at a homeless shelter. Eventually he nudges his friend off the streets and into low-income housing.

Foxx's performance, based on many hours studying the real Nathaniel Ayers, is great, and Downey jumps into the role feet first, as he always does, and turns in yet another career-making performance.

'The Soloist' will give you that warm and fuzzy, feel-good feeling that has nothing to do with the weather.

"STATE OF PLAY"
GRADE: ****

If you are one of those that still enjoy newspapers, see 'State of Play'. If you work at one, see it and you'll be reminded of why you chose that career in the first place.

This gripping political thriller from director Kevin Macdonald is an Americanization of a BBC miniseries, and features a first-rate cast, terrific pacing and the sort of snappy dialogue you rarely find on the big screen anymore.

The film also celebrates the role of the print news reporter as a watchdog for society, while taking some shots at the online world of bloggers and free, fast-paced editorial content.

The main character is Cal McAffrey (Russell Crowe), a frumpy, junk-food-eating single reporter at a Washington, D.C., newspaper. Cal is old school, believing in the virtues of legwork and deep research, and he abhors the paper's young Web site stars, who, in his opinion don't actually report, but instead put out their own prejudices for the world to see.

But Cal soon falls off his own high horse, when a young woman mysteriously dies under the wheels of a subway train. She was the chief researcher for ambitious and idealistic young Congressman Stephen Collins (Ben Affleck), investigating abuses abroad by a big government contractor with a private army of mercenaries.

To Cal it seems likely that the corporation under fire (it appears to be a standin for Blackwater) killed the woman to scuttle the investigation. But then word leaks that Collins was having an affair with the dead woman.

Battered on all sides, his career and marriage in jeopardy, the politician turns to his college roommate - Cal, of course - for advice in handling the bad publicity. That Cal would even consider doing P.R. for his friend reveals that his moral lines are not drawn as clearly in the sand as we had thought.

Cal plunges into the investigation, linking the aide's death to the murder of a street hustler and the wounding of a bicyclist on the same day.

At the request of his managing editor (Helen Mirren) he finds himself working with one of the paper's Internet writers, blogger Della Frye (Rachel McAdams).

Cal enjoys skewering Della for her lack of experience - "I'm just trying to help you get a few facts in the mix the next time you upchuck online." - but it becomes clear she possesses morals Cal long ago left in j-school.

The screenplay is crisp, and unafraid to leave a few questions unanswered, filled torn-from-the-headlines issues, and may just make you appreciate the fact that there are still people out there working to drop those headlines at your doorstep each day.

"OBSERVE AND REPORT"
GRADE: **

Seth Rogen is a mall cop in "Observe and Report", a movie where the premise seems to be 'let's try to make the next scene even more shocking than the last'. There's dark comedies, and then there's this one.

The comedy is based on taking everything to the extreme, not only in terms of outrageous grossness, but also when it comes to toying with our own expectations of what's to come. Just when you expect another joke, something violent happens, and vice versa.

The synopsis is as follows: at the Forest Ridge Mall, head of security Ronnie Barnhardt (Seth Rogen) patrols his jurisdiction with an iron fist. The master of his domain, he combats skateboarders, shoplifters and the occasional unruly customer while dreaming of the day when he can swap his flashlight for a badge and a gun.

Ronnie's delusions of grandeur are put to the test when the mall is struck by a flasher. Driven by his personal duty to protect and serve the mall and its

About the Towns

BY THE NUMBERS, AND COUNTING THE DAYS

by Phyllis Nissen

SOMEWHAT GOOD NEWS

(NORTH READING)- "Aided by a spike in the number of million dollar home sales, the average sale price of a single family home in North Reading rose a little more than 5 percent in 2008, according to data obtained by the Transcript from the MLS Property Information Network," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"The average sale price was tallied at $497,428.

"Sales of million dollar homes rose to six from two in 2008. The presence of those six sales skews this year's average sale price up $69,516. In comparison, 2007's average was skewed only $9,728 by its million dollar sales.

"If these luxury homes are removed from the equation, the average sale price drops to $427,912.

"Other indicators of this year's rocky economy were also present in town. The volume of homes sold dropped significantly to 97 from 152, a 36.2 percent gap.

"The rise in the average sale price is an anomaly compared to what is happening in the local and national real estate markets. Bordering Lynnfield, for instance, saw the average sale price of homes in its community fall 12.3 percent.

"On the national level, the Standard & Poor's/Case-Shiller home-price index recently reported that values across the US are down an average 18 percent as of October, 2008.

"The index, which takes data from 20 metro areas to form a composite for its national index, predicts prices will continue to decline through 2009 as unemployment continues to rise and lending remains difficult for first-time home buyers...."

-Of townwide concern (Tewksbury)- "One of the main topics of discussion during the School Committee's meeting was the high absence rate among teachers. It was reported that out of 273.5 teachers employed by the Tewksbury Public Schools, 22 teachers a day call in sick," notes the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"The report was given by Jack Quinn, School Business Manager, and it appears those numbers are accurate, even after backing out scheduled professional development days. A letter dated March 3, from Quinn to Dr. Christine McGrath, Superintendent of Schools, states that, 'as of January 31, 2009, there have been 94 days of work for a teacher: 94 school days + 3 professional development days x 273.5 teachers = 26,530 days. Now take that figure of 2110/26,530 = 8% Unadjusted Rate. If you take that 2,110 - 193

Professional Development Days and -194 Personal Days you end up with 1723. Now take the adjusted figure and 1723/26530 = 6.5% Adjusted Rate."

"An absenteeism rate of 6.5% is still well over the national average... Mike Kelley, School Committee Member, said, 'I just want to echo the comments covered by board members. I think the fact that we are two-times the national average indicates to me there is something wrong here. Where there is smoke there's fire. If there are people who are unfairly abusing our system, I want them dealt with swiftly and harshly because it is not fair to all the teachers who come in every single day who put time in the classroom.'"

"We also have a financial responsibility towards the taxpayer to make sure that abuse is not happening." AND THE BEST NEWS (WINCHESTER) "U.S. Navy Commander Dan Daglio's trip home ... began in Iraq and ended in the balcony of the McCall Middle School auditorium.

"Daglio, 41, snuck into the auditorium after the Winchester Cooperative Theater's performance of 'Cinderella' was underway because his children, who did not know their Dad was coming home on Friday, were performing. In fact, daughter Ally, 12, was Cinderella, and son Nicky, 11, had a solo in the popular musical.

"While Mom, Heather (Innes) Daglio, and Dad knew he was coming home a week early, they wanted to surprise the kids, plus they did not want them to be distracted from opening night of the play.

"It was great," said Dan. "My flight went from Iraq to Kuwait to Virginia to Boston and we landed just as the curtain was going up on the play."

"I wanted to surprise the kids, but Heather surprised me at the airport. She got a lot of the family, including my brother-in-law Sean (U.S. Army Major, Innes), together to meet me and I wasn't expecting them. We went right to the play, and I got to see my son's solo."

"Daglio, a Holy Cross graduate, was attached to Task Force Troy, the counter-IED (Improvised Explosive Device) Task Force. 'My job was running a program participating with Iraqis, teaching them how to defeat IEDs, which are the enemy's primary weapons system.'"

"Today, Daglio returned to work for the first time since deployment. Daglio is a senior vice president for investments at Morgan Stanley. 'I'm going back to a real war zone....'"

SPORTS SHORTS

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Which school has produced the most players picked in the NFL draft?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

Senior midfielder Ashley Durepo (Concord, N.H.) scored a career-high five goals as part of a six-point performance - and SENIOR MIDFIELDER MICHAELA HARDY (READING) scored her 100th career goal - to lead the 19th-ranked University of New Hampshire women's lacrosse team to a 17-4 victory against the University of Vermont in Saturday afternoon's America East game at Memorial Field that marked Senior Day for the UNH Wildcats.

UNH won its second consecutive game to improve to 10-6 overall and 3-2 in America East. The Wildcats, who have recorded 10+ wins five of the last six seasons, now control their own destiny for a league postseason berth; they will secure a spot with a win in the April 25 regular-season finale at Binghamton University.

UNH scored three goals in a three-minute span to quickly build a 3-0 lead, extended its advantage to 6-1 and took a 9-2 lead into halftime. UVM struck twice in the opening 1:36 of the second half to pull within 9-4, but the visitors did not score again the rest of the game.

New Hampshire's six-member senior class compiled totals of 12 goals, one assist, 15 ground balls, eight caused turnovers and four draw controls. The rest of the team tallied five goals, four assists, five caused turnovers and eight draw controls.

In addition to the six points, Durepo was credited with four ground balls. Hardy finished with three goals, three ground balls, two caused turnovers and one draw control. Sarah Von Bergen (East Setauket, N.Y.) also scored three times and was credited with three CTO, two GB and two DC.

Durepo opened the game scoring at 25:46 of the first half with a drive on the right side and a low shot inside the near post. Hardy scored 61 seconds later on a carbon copy play to record her 100th career goal.

*Need some help with this week's question? The school is not a certain football powerhouse located on the West Coast.

*Sandy Bridgeman, 13th-year head coach of the University of New Hampshire women's lacrosse program, has announced that seven student-athletes have committed to the UNH family for the 2009-10 season, including ALLY STAGER (READING).

"We're very excited about the quality and depth of this year's recruiting class," stated Bridgeman, a three-time America East Coach of the Year and UNH's winningest women's lacrosse coach.

Stager lettered in lacrosse, soccer and basketball at Reading Memorial High School. She is the school's all-time leading scorer and was named a Middlesex League All-Star in 2006, 2007 and 2008. In basketball, Stager was a Middlesex League All-Star and Eastern Mass All-Star as a senior. She was named the Middlesex League Goalkeeper of the Year last fall in soccer and was also an Eastern Mass All-Star selection.

New Hampshire is currently ranked 18th in the country with a 10-6 overall record. The Wildcats conclude the regular season this weekend and will make their league-record 12 consecutive America East tournament appearance in 2009.

*Sophomore Lauren Raimondi (East Longmeadow, MA) and senior Christina DaLomba (Marstons Mills, MA) each established NCAA provisional marks to lead the UMass Lowell women's track and field team at the Larry Ellis Invitational at Princeton University.

The invitational drew colleges from all three NCAA divisions as well as athletes representing postgraduate track and field clubs in and around the East.

Coupled with the men's team, UMass Lowell had six individuals and one relay team qualify for the NCAA Championship.

JUNIOR JACQUI BARRETT (WOBBURN) captured the shot put, her third title in as many weeks, with a toss of 45' 7.75", and inched ahead to seventh on the Division II list. Sophomore Bethany Staiti (Barre, MA) placed 10th (second) with a distance of 39' 7.75".

In other events, JUNIOR HEATHER MCCARTHY (BURLINGTON), was on a relay team that placed fourth (first) in the 4X400 meter relay in 3:58.25

*Six individuals will be inducted into the Academy of Notre Dame's (Tyngsboro) Athletic Hall of Fame on Thursday, April 30th, at a ceremony to be held at Lenzi's. Honorees include: Sr. Kathryn Lawrence McGuigan, SND; Caitlin Howe (Class of 1999); Elizabeth (Lawlor) Young (Class of 1995); Kathleen Lawlor (Class of 1997); Pat Gonzalez, former coach; and Kathryn Rourke (Class of 1998).

PAT GONZALEZ OF WINCHESTER began her career at NDA in the fall of 1994 as the JV Volleyball Coach and became the Varsity Coach in the fall of 1998. When the Academy began its indoor track program in 1996, Ms. Gonzalez was tapped to become the first Head Coach. She held that position for three seasons. At the same time, she began her M.Ed. program in Athletic Administration and completed her internship at the Academy which included developing a Coaches Handbook. She became the Head Track and Field Coach in 1998 and took the program from a sport that basketball athletes did "just to stay in shape" to the number one sport for many students. Under her tutelage, NDA became a force to be reckoned with in the program of aviation education, leadership development and good citizenship. Former CAP cadets constitute 10% of each Air Force Academy class.

Civil Air Patrol

CAP today flies the world's largest fleet of modern Cessna aircraft, whose high-wing design makes them desirable for search operations. Still included in the 530-plane fleet owned by the CAP corporation are specialized aircraft such as nine former Air Force U-6 (L-20) De Havilland Beaver bush planes restored and flown by the Alaska Wing, CAP.

New to the CAP fleet in 2004 were large Gippsland single-engine aircraft built in Australia, purchased for high-occupancy flights and to accommodate new hi-tech sensors and equipment for air search and homeland defense.

The CCG Squadron is a "composite" squadron, comprising both Cadet (youth) and Senior (adult) members and is actively seeking new members. The Squadron meets Wednesday evenings at 7:00 at Camp Curtis Guild in Reading. Anyone interested in aviation, search-and-rescue activities, or community service should feel free to check out our website at www.ccgssquadron.org or contact the Civil Air patrol CCG Composite Squadron at 617-281-6311 or email at mjoyce@madico.com
